Canada 'Never Pledged'

WINNIPEG (CP) — External Affairs Minister Howard Green said Wednesday Canada had never committed itself to accepting nuclear arms for its forces in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Party President

High Tory

Favors Warheads

MONTREAL (CP) — Egan Chambers, national president of the Progressive Conservative Association, said Wednesday night Canada's Bomarc missiles and Voodoo interceptors should be armed with nuclear warheads.

He made the statement in a speech accepting the Conservative party nomination to contest Montreal St. Lawrence-St. George riding in the April 8 federal election.

MOST EFFICIENT

"It is my belief," he said, "that as long as the Canadian chiefs of staff tell the government that Russia retains a sufficient force of long-range bombers to pose a real threat to North America, our interceptors—the Bomarc and Voodoo aircraft—should be armed in the most efficient manner possible, which means with nuclear weapons."

CAN'T START WAR

Mr. Chambers said neither the Bomarc nor the Voodoo "has the capability of starting a war."

Bomarc, for example, could not be launched until an attacking force had flown over 1,000 miles of northern Canada.

"I want to reiterate that I do support the policies of the Conservative party although there are some of them that I would change or expand upon."

He told a press conference that Liberal claims about such a commitment were false. Mr. Green, here to address a Progressive Conservative nominating convention, said "we happen to be the government and I say there wasn't a commitment signed. Mr. Green said the Liberals "got themselves in a mess" on the nuclear question when they suddenly made up their minds that Canada has a lot of commitments.

At home, he said, Prime Minister Diefenbaker made it clear in June, 1961, that Voodoo aircraft added to the RCAF would have a conventional role.

NONE BROKEN

Canada has no commitments to anybody to accept nuclear weapons outright and "we have broken no commitments," Mr. Green said there is a lot of Liberal talk about Canada's prestige declining abroad by not accepting nuclear weapons. "We NATO and this is a lot of eyewash."

ONE OF FEW

Canada is one of only a few countries which have lived up to their NATO commitments, he said.

There is a strong feeling in Quebec against possession of nuclear weapons and the Liberals "will lose a lot of seats" there in the April 8 federal election because of their pro-nuclear stand.

BEST FRIEND

Much of Canada's work in world disarmament councils would be wasted if the country took nuclear weapons, he said.

Mr. Green admitted Canada has "one or two serious problems" with the United States but at the same time Canada is the best friend the U.S. has.

He said a loss of support for the Progressive Conservative party from some eastern newspapers could be "a blessing."

People came to Prime Minister Diefenbaker's side when he was "so vicious and unfairly attacked."

Drought Threat Panics Swedes

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Panicky crowds of Swedes—a traditionally thirsty lot—stormed the state liquor stores Wednesday.

The foremen at the state liquor monopoly went on strike over vacation time.

Rumors circulated that the more popular types of drink—vodka, whiskey, brandy and domestic beer—will be exhausted in a few days.

French Warships Head for Brazil

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI)—Brazilian Navy Minister Pedro Paulo Suzano said last night four French warships are en route to Brazilian waters and "we will repel these ships."

The ship movements were the latest development in the "lobster war" between Brazil and France.

Suzano said the Brazilian navy intercepted French radio messages which reported that the 80 plane carrier Clemenceau, the cruiser De Grasse and two destroyers, Tatu and Cassard, are "halfway between France and Brazil."

France and Brazil have been heading for a naval showdown due to Brazilian harassment of French lobster boats.

MOSCOW (Reuters)—Premier Khrushchev Wednesday described the U.S. political system as a choice between "a donkey and an elephant."

"I do not know which of these two animals I would prefer myself," he told a cheering audience of 6,000 Soviet voters at the Kremlin in a "campaign meeting" before Sunday's Soviet elections.

The donkey is the symbol of the Democratic party in the U.S. and the elephant that of the Republicans. Khrushchev is a candidate for re-election to the Supreme Soviet parliament from the Kalinin electoral district of Moscow.

During his two visits to the United States, Khrushchev told the voters, he took the opportunity to watch television during a U.S. election campaign. He told about American voters being driven "crazy" by the 24-hour-a-day noise of speeches trying to persuade them to vote "for a donkey or an elephant."

Khrushchev said politicians in bourgeois countries were mostly "capitalists, gouging landlords or their stooges."

It was quite different in the Soviet Union, a Soviet representative needed "no money and no influential connections."

Target: Gunderson Conflict of Interest Alleged by Rhodes

NDP STEPS UP BARRAGE

Completed Hearings Promised

PREMIER BENNETT

... why not before?

It's Up To B.C. —Fulton

VERNON (CP) — Works Minister Fulton says the federal government, while "vitaly interested," is going to leave it up to B.C.'s Social Credit government to investigate charges levelled in the legislature in connection with a Trans-Canada Highway project.

In an interview, Mr. Fulton said Wednesday:

"Federal money was involved in this work and naturally the federal government is vitally interested in any charges such as these. The federal government does not plan to initiate any investigation because I am sure provincial authorities will see to it a full and conclusive investigation is made."

Mr. Fulton has been named B.C. leader of the Progressive Conservative party and will be leaving the federal cabinet.

He said he plans to return to his Ottawa office Thursday and will check the contracts and payments connected with the charges.

A legislative committee will be kept sitting as long as necessary to finish its hearings into charges of large-scale misuse of funds in the B.C. highways department—even after prorogation.

That, Premier Bennett told the legislature Wednesday, is the government's position.

It will stay that way, he said, despite opposition demands that sworn statements and documents tabled in the legislature Tuesday should be turned over immediately to the RCMP for investigation.

His reply came after renewed demands by Alan Macfarlane (Lib.—Oak Bay) for an immediate police probe of the charges made by Gordon Dowding (NDP—Burnaby).

The charges "alleged misconduct of the most serious kind," Mr. Macfarlane said, and completed RCMP reports should go to Attorney-General Bonner and to the minister of justice in Ottawa, because both provincial and federal funds were involved.

The reports might show that the allegations were well founded and "might involve the resignation of the minister of highways" or that they were unfounded and all persons named would be cleared of any responsibility, he said.

It was time for immediate action, Mr. Macfarlane said, and he did not want to see the charges handled by the standing committee on public accounts.

They could start an investigation and the House could end its session and that would be the end of it, he suggested.

When they were first brought up, Mr. Bonner asked leave of the legislature to place the matter in the hands of the committee.

Unanimous consent of the House was needed for the move, because there had been no notice of motion.

Opposition leader Robert Strachan refused to give his consent.

Mr. Bonner then filed notice of motion.

The motion referring the material tabled in the House to the committee is scheduled to come up for consideration today.

In reply to Mr. Macfarlane, Mr. Bennett suggested that it was odd that the opposition hadn't brought up the allegations before Highways Minister Gagliardi spoke in the budget debate.

If they had done so, he would have had a chance to reply, Mr. Bennett said.

JAMES RHODES

... 'spider web'

EINAR GUNDERSON

New Affidavits Read in House

By DON MATHESON

More documents, more charges of alleged Social Credit misuse of public office cracked in the legislature Wednesday as the New Democratic Party continued a session-long attack.

James Rhodes (NDP—Delta) stepped up to the firing line to wind up the budget debate for the opposition.

Before he finished he had:

● Tabled two sworn affidavits alleging conflict of private with public interest by PGE railway vice-president Einar Gunderson;

● Described a series of construction companies as "a spider web" whose main qualifications appeared to him that they were either connected with defeated Social Credit candidates or had personal connections with Highways Minister P. A. Gagliardi, and,

● Said the opposition will move before the session is over to have the government appoint a royal commission to inquire into how all political parties in B.C. obtain campaign funds.

Mr. Rhodes read in full two long sworn statements from Douglas Small of Eagle Harbor, one-time employee of W. L. Laird Distributors Ltd., and public accountant Ludger Robineau of Williams Lake, who once checked the Laird company's accounts with the PGE.

CONCLUSIONS

After tabling them, he said the basic conclusions to be drawn from the affidavits were:

● "Gunderson's private firm is involved in the affairs of a company doing business with the PGE."

● "Gunderson as vice-president of the PGE has extended special favors to W. L. Laird Distributors Ltd."

● "The company was depriving the railway of proper revenues."

● "The conflict of interest by Gunderson was harmful to a crown company and is untenable."

(Mr. Gunderson is a partner in the accounting firm of Gunderson, Stokes, Walton and Co.)

"MUST GO"

A week earlier, the legislature heard the call, "Mr. Gunderson must go," from Alex Macdonald (NDP—Vancouver East) because he was a director of crown agencies and also said to be a collector of Social Credit campaign funds.

Tuesday, documents claiming large-scale misuse of B.C. highways department funds, including sums in the $100,000 range, were filed in the House.

COMPLAINTS

Early in his speech, Mr. Rhodes referred to the charges and then said Mr. Gagliardi had completed "bitterly" about order-paper questions about the sums paid to a certain list of companies for government work.

He listed Atlas Construction Co., Casco Tire Co., Western Sand and Gravel Ltd., all of Kamloops, and seven other companies. The order-paper answers which they received about $2,200,000 during 1962.

"SPIDER WEB"

"The companies mentioned in the questions," Mr. Rhodes said, "appear to be part of a large spider—a spider web of companies whose main qualifications appear to be either defeated Social Credit candidates or their personal connections with the minister."

One group of interlocking companies had as a director a disgraced lawyer who had been sentenced to two years in prison for fraud, he said.

"PUBLIC PAID"

With "no construction experience, no financial backing," the company had fallen down on a major project and "the public paid through the nose for this blatant patronage which went to these inefficient political beavers."

All the companies "over the years, have received literally

Anti-Climax

Ultimatum On Gas Made Good

Social Credit maverick Cyril Shefford's ultimatum to the government on gasoline prices was made good last night hours before its deadline—but it came as an anti-climax.

At the close of last night's sitting he filed a notice of motion for next Friday calling on the government to "give consideration to the appointment of a royal commission to study all phases of petroleum marketing practices in the province and to make recommendations thereon."

PANNING LIKELY

It is the kind of resolution which can be supported without any embarrassing split in Social Credit ranks and undoubtedly would be passed.

Key words on the resolution are "give consideration."

Had it called on the government to appoint a royal commission a major split could have taken place.

SUPPORT

More than half a dozen Social Credit members had already indicated support of Shefford's plan and so had NDP and Liberal members.

Speaking during the throne speech debate earlier in the session Mr. Shefford gave oil companies and the government until today to take action.

MAY NOT RISE

But last night there was even some question of whether the resolution could come up Friday.

If it has to take its turn among some 22 other resolutions now before the House it may not come up before the end of the session.

Five Killed In Crash

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP) — A RC119 tanker crashed at Eielson Air Force base near here Wednesday night and U.S. Air Force officials said at least five persons were killed.

Evidence of Misuse 'Still Being Found'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Montreal attorney E. W. Cross said he is continually unearthing evidence in an alleged misuse of B.C. department of highways funds.

Mr. Cross is representing Dick Holzworth of Helena, Mont., who signed an affidavit tabled in the provincial legislature Tuesday alleging falsification and padding of highway project estimates totaling $135,000.

WILLING TO SPEAK

Mr. Cross said in a telephone interview from Helena that he and his client, president of Union Contractors Limited, would be willing to come to B.C. to testify at any inquiry into the case.

The lawyer said that $135,000 went to L. and M. Logging company from the altering of work sheets for work that was later done by Union on a stretch of highway in the Revelstoke area.

He said Holzworth, 38, lost $200,000 because of "graft" and is fighting to get it back. Holzworth had invested the money in Union Contractors which took over the Trans-Canada Highways contract from L. and M. Logging of Kamloops in 1957.

"We don't make any charges we can't back up," the lawyer said, referring to the affidavits tabled in the legislature by Gordon Dowding, NDP member of the legislature for Burnaby.

There is further litigation pending in B.C. and all stems from the contract mentioned in the affidavits.

"I cannot disclose details of them at this time."

WIFE WORKED

The lawyer said that Holzworth had been a contractor with his own firm but had not been operating since going broke with Union. He said Holzworth's wife has worked in Helena to support their family.

millions of dollars, much of it on a non-bid basis.

In addition, the House is of course more than familiar with the other companies which have been involved in court cases... and the subsequent conviction of the minister of highways on a charge of contempt," he said.

NO CONCERN

But the minister had no need for concern if everything was above board.

"Like Caesar's wife, the minister must not only be above reproach but he must appear to be above reproach," Mr. Rhodes said.

The minister had to lean over backwards to make sure there was "not the slightest suggestion of wrongdoing, collusion or favoritism" even though he might lose personal friends, he added.

Waldo Skillings (SC-Victoria) jumped up to ask if personal motives were being implied to Mr. Gagliardi but was ruled out of order and sat down, shouting "I don't like this innuendo and smear..."

Continuing, Mr. Rhodes said it was the seriousness of earlier allegations referring to the pressuring of business leaders into providing funds for Social Credit officers that led the NDP into making a full public inquiry.

LIMIT SPENDING

Legislation should follow to limit the spending of each party and each candidate during elections, he said.

To a silent chamber, he then said "there has been much serious talk in this House during the last two days.

"Now it is more than just a provincial matter—it is a Dominion matter," he claimed. He made no further reference to this.

Both the sworn statements he then read referred to Laird Distributors' pool-car business and beer and beer bottle handling on the PGE during late 1956 and early 1957.

Mr. Small said he worked at Shalath where distributing beer was the "main business" of the company. There the PGE lost money through juggling freight bills and not being paid for life freight cars, his statement said.

"ORDERS"

W. L. Laird had once tied up PGE microwave facilities for an hour and a half when other facilities were out of order, but the local agent "apparently had orders from above, and could not do anything about it."

His statement said that once when he had to deliver beer in an emergency he called a telephone number and was answered by "Gunderson here" and gave him the go-ahead to ship the beer.

Gunderson, Stokes, Walton and Company advised the Laird books, Mr. Small's affidavit said.

Mr. Robineau's statement said that after checking the W. L. Laird accounts he was asked to join the company.

VARIANCES

He said his audit showed the company was owed only $13,400 when a Gunderson, Walton, Stokes and Co. balance sheet showed it was owed $58,138.

Later, a balance sheet he prepared showed a company deficit of $99,650, "most of which was owed to the PGE," where, as a G.W.S. and Co. balance sheet showed a deficit of only $7,707, his statement said.

TORONTO (CP)—A Toronto detective will fly 11,000 miles to Australia to get his man after a two-year search. Det. Sgt. Ivan Gilbey sought Leslie Kocan after an accounts audit in the man's firm showed shortages of $27,000. Police in Brisbane arrested him Jan. 18 and now Det. Sgt. Gilbey will go and get him.

Diplomatic Fuss

Kidnapped?

BOON (AP)—The West German government is investigating a claim that French Secret Army leader Antoine Argoud was kidnapped in Munich. If French secret agents were involved, there could be diplomatic trouble with France.

This is the last thing Chancellor Adenauer would want, with the new French-West German treaty of co-operation coming up for ratification in Parliament. Its prospects already are clouded by the unpopularity here of President de Gaulle's grand design for a Europe dominated by France.

The justice ministry kept telephone wires to Munich buzzing Wednesday to try to get at the truth in the Argoud case. Local and state police there said it was news to them until Tuesday night that Argoud had been there.

NO EVIDENCE FOUND

A justice ministry spokesman said no evidence has been found so far to indicate that the terrorist leader had been seized in the city by French agents and smuggled into France, as suggested in the Paris newspaper L'Aurore. The French government conceivably could have resorted to this because Argoud's crimes are political and rule out extradition.

From the point of view of the West German government, the crucial thing is who carried out the kidnapping—if there was one. If French agents were involved, then a protest would have to be made to France for a violation of West German sovereignty.

Stop Hurting People Bonner Asks NDP

Attorney General Bonner yesterday pleaded with the NDP to refrain from aimless personal attacks on people outside the legislature.

He said such attacks impair the efficiency of the government, impede legislative progress, drive good people away from politics and confuse the public.

His remarks came as he closed the budget debate and just before the House approved the budget 26-20, the opposition voting against the government.

Earlier, an NDP speaker named a "disbarred lawyer" as a director of a company which defaulted on a highway project and recalled the man was imprisoned two years for fraud.

Mr. Bonner asked what purpose was served by recalling the man's misfortune if he was now carrying on an honest life.

WHAT SERVES?

"What serves the purposes of this House by recalling his disbarment? What serves, what serves?"

"It is not appropriate for any member of this House to bring this up if it serves no purpose."

He said he has approached personal friends to try and lure them into politics and they have asked him "How do you stand the gaff? How do you put up with all that personal abuse?"

If the NDP wasn't more careful in its attacks "then the level of public affairs is going to descend to a very low level indeed."

He charged that the NDP is labor-dominated and also held up an Ontario Communist party publication through which, he said "you can go through page by page and principle by principle and find the policies of our friends across the aisle."

Bruch Urges Effort At Power for Island

Herbert Bruch (SC—Esquimalt) suggested in the legislature debates on estimates the government should "stress" the possibility of bringing Peace River power to Vancouver Island to help industrial development.

David Barrett (NDP—Dewdney) said the Social Credit government is gambling on a power policy "based on the worst kind" after being elected on a power policy of a different sort—that it wouldn't take over the B.C. Electric.

CALL ELECTION

It should go back to the people in an election because it had a moral obligation to see if the electors agreed with the change, he said.

Alex Macdonald (NDP—Vancouver East) wondered if it was sound policy for the government to make 97 per cent of its employees' pension funds investments in B.C. securities. Perhaps there should be a more wide-spread portfolio, he said.

Premier Bennett replied Canada was bound to be the soundest nation in the world because it was still developing.

Investing the funds in B.C., he added, was "investing them in the best security in the whole wide world."

Your Good Health

Life Will Be a Lot Happier When Fear, Suspicion Gone

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: My physician says I need psychoanalysis and I am petrified. I think I know the difference between psychoanalysis and psychoanalysts. However I am fearful of deep probing.

My problems started in early childhood but I have heard so many things about analysis and all the so-called Freudian jokes that I question the doctor's judgment.

I thought that psychoanalysis is considered outdated. I know that psychoanalysis is not an MD and I can't understand why my physician would direct me to one. I haven't been back to him.

I don't understand why he didn't give me those wonderful tranquilizers, but he claimed that my trouble was beyond his field as an internist and he directed me to where he thought there is help. I feel he does not want me as a patient. What do you think? I'm so scared I don't know what to do.—P.M.

In plain language, you're still mixed up on some facts. First, psychiatrists (and hence also those who have continued into the field of analysis) ARE doctors of Medicine.

Second, I feel sure you will ultimately be surprised to find out how little "probing" is involved. It is a highly skilled art of helping the patient do his own inspecting of the facts of his life, past and present.

Third, there's no reason why your physician should try to get rid of you. It would be easy to keep you tamed with tranquilizers, but it wouldn't cure anything. He is honest enough to say so.

Fourth, it seems to me that your fears and suspicions are an indication of your upset state, and life is going to be far happier when you learn how to shed some of them.

Fifth, yes, I've heard the Freudian jokes, too, a couple of thousand of them. I guess, by this time. But I attach a great deal more significance to a remark that a fine analyst once made to me:

"Some of these patients come in and start spouting the most lurid recitals of their sexual experiences. Many a time I've had to say, 'But, Madame, why are you telling me all this?'"

"They look blank and say, 'I thought I was supposed to. After we get past that and get down to the real problems, we begin to make some progress.'"

Laugh at the Freudian jokes if they're funny, but don't let them mislead you.

Dear Dr. Molner: What causes inflammation of the bowel? Why should it recur every few months? I have not been told to follow any particular diet.—E.F.W.

Such chronic, recurrent irritation can be caused by ulceration of the colon, or by a variety of germs and parasites. Culture and study of stool samples (to identify any parasites or harmful germs) plus, if possible, direct inspection of the bowel with a proctoscope, to determine the cause and nature of the inflammation, are essential. As for swimming, there might be some problem involved in a sanitary pad becoming wet with contaminated water and not changed promptly. The tampon type obviates this. But other than that, there's no reason to avoid any normal physical activity. I might add that a study of college women showed that cramp was much more common among physically inactive ones, and less common among those who customarily got plenty of exercise.

... "remember every brother"

Pope Opens Lent

VATICAN CITY—Pope John, 81, opened the Lenten season with Ash Wednesday services and a worldwide radio broadcast urging "every good Christian to live the precept of charity."

He said Catholics must remember "the poor, sick, orphaned children and the innumerable brothers of ours who still lack the minimum they need to eat, cover their bare bodies and gather their families under one roof."

HOLLYWOOD—TV bigwig Desi Arnaz, former husband of Lucille Ball, announced he will celebrate his 46th birthday Saturday by marrying Edith Hirsch, who divorced millionaire sportsman Clement Hirsch in Mexico Tuesday.

NEW YORK—A wire-laden package was found on a counter of the big Internal Revenue Service office and 750 people fled as police and the bomb squad arrived. At that moment, so did Walter Guss Martin, an amateur inventor who explained he had left behind a brand-new burglar alarm.

GUADALAJARA, Mexico—"The Shadow" of the famed U.S. radio program of the 1940s, in reality Arthur Vinton, died in his home here. He was about 60.

MONROVIA, Liberia—President Tubman, who broke up an assassination plot this month, fired Attorney General Joseph C. Johnson, who was in charge of internal security. No reason was given.

NEW DELHI—Prime Minister Nehru told Parliament India will go ahead with talks with Pakistan over Kashmir despite Pakistan's border agreement with Red China.

GLOUCESTER—Lella Bernard, 51, was sent to jail for three years because he knocked down a pedestrian, stopped his car, tried unsuccessfully to drag him from beneath it and then drove off—across the man's chest.

VANCOUVER—Mrs. Frank Ross, first woman chancellor of a Canadian university, was re-elected unopposed at the University of B.C.

LONDON—Actress Elizabeth Taylor spent most of her 31st birthday watching friend Richard Burton do retakes for the film Cleopatra.

CHICAGO—Two bomb threats and two arrests marked a speech at the University of Chicago by George Lincoln Rockwell, 44, leader of the U.S. Nazi party.

GLASGOW, Scotland—Bookmaker Hugh McKenna said he was in a hurry and gave his coat to the cleaners without checking its pockets. A woman employee said $11,200 in one of the pockets and returned it.

VANCOUVER—Chief Justice A. C. Doherty adjourned his royal commission inquiry into the Workmen's Compensation Act whom he developed

Red Warning Expanded

MOSCOW (AP)—Premier Khrushchev warned Wednesday that if Cuba, Red China or any other Communist nation is attacked, "the Soviet Union will come to the assistance of its friends and strike a devastating blow at the aggressors."

Khrushchev's speech to an election rally in the Kremlin came against a background of renewed Red Chinese attacks on his policy and a Peking demand for an apology for the Soviet attitude in their ideological dispute.

SENSIBLE
Khrushchev defended his peaceful coexistence policy, which has been criticized by Red China, as "the only sensible policy."

"If, however, the imperialists violate the right of the peoples to choose the socio-political system they want, if they try to impose their will on the peoples, this will lead to a world thermonuclear war."

WARNING

"This is why we resolutely warn the imperialists: If an attack is made on Cuba or on the People's Republic of China which is being threatened from Taiwan (Formosa), if an attack is made on the Korean Democratic People's Republic, the Democratic Republic of Viet Nam, or the German Democratic Republic, or indeed any socialist country, the Soviet Union will come to the assistance of its friends and strike a devastating blow at the aggressors."

"The imperialists must know if they unleash a new atomic war, they will themselves be burned in the fires of that war."

EXPANDED

The address echoed last Friday's words of Defence Minister Rodion Malinovsky, who threatened the United States with atomic war if Cuba should be attacked. But Khrushchev expanded the warning to include the other Communist nations.

Khrushchev did not specifically mention Red China's latest blast in the quarrel, a 7,000-word broadcast editorial of the official Peking People's Daily accusing the Kremlin of double-dealing. His remarks, however, seemed directly connected with that argument.

The Highway Charges

IN CONTRAST to the New Democratic Party's attempts during the current legislative session to convince the electorate by innuendo and without supporting evidence that Social Credit obtains campaign funds by improper means, the documents laid before the House by Mr. Gordon Dowling on Tuesday, alleging misuse of funds in the highways department, by their nature constitute a serious charge against the responsible minister, Mr. Gagliardi, and one that cannot be dismissed as a smear nor subjected to anything less than the most convincing scrutiny.

Attorney-General Bonner was quick to suggest that the matter be placed before the public accounts committee of the assembly. This course however, whether or not the committee has power to conduct a full enough investigation, would inevitably fall short of satisfying the people of British Columbia presuming that no fault were found and that as Mr. Gagliardi says there were "a definite explanation for everything." The public suspicion however unfair and unfounded would still endure that the committee predominantly of Social Credit members had been busy with the whitewash brush. That is human nature, and it is no insult to the members of the committee, no reflection on their integrity, to say so.

What is clearly needed is a judicial inquiry, a royal commission as the Opposition has suggested, and the sooner the better. The allegations are too grave, and cast too much of a shadow on Mr. Gagliardi, his department and the government, to be the subject of procrastination, political debate or generalized denial. The government, with its past experience in a somewhat similar circumstance, should hasten to recognize that this is the case.

Tory Choice

ONCE the former member withdrew his bid for renomination, for personal reasons none too clear but which must be respected, it was a foregone conclusion that Mr. Eric Charman would be chosen to carry the Conservative standard in the Victoria riding.

The Tories thus have a young and vigorous candidate to support, who if lacking previous parliamentary experience—and all men first entering the political realm are of this vintage—can be depended on to put his business and active community leadership to good purpose.

It was a gracious tribute he paid, also, to the Conservative representative Mr. A. DeB. McPhillips, for the services he had rendered to his constituency during his six years as the Victoria MP.

Now that the smoke of family contest is dispersed and the nominating convention united in support of its new candidate, it will be up to Conservative groups to rally together and work hard for the election of Mr. Charman.

Nominating conventions would not carry the conviction they should when lacking spirited bids for nomination. These should properly be regarded as alternates and not as opponents, and all parties thrive when competition is keen and lively effort to secure the nomination.

The local Liberals are faced with the same situation, giving rise to seeming conflict but which reflects worthwhile ambition to represent that party. In this both the major political groups of this area are comparable, although the Liberals usually manage to keep their divergences less public than do the Conservatives.

Even so the local Liberal president found it needful two weeks ago to urge his party members to cease their bickering and public criticism in order to achieve desired cohesion.

These disparities in essence are healthy and are of the root of the democratic processes. Without them the free interplay of opinion would be stifled and public service would be set back.

It is unanimity after the decision has been made that counts, and it is in this vein that Mr. Charman should be able to call on the enthusiastic support of all those who subscribe to the party he represents.

The Danger

IN HIS SENIOR YEAR at college, when Britain I and her Commonwealth partners were fighting alone against Hitler and his Nazi hordes, President Kennedy wrote a book entitled "Why England Slept."

In his book, Mr. Kennedy, whose only claim to fame at the time it was published in 1940 was that he was the son of the ambassador to Britain, attempts to analyze why England was so ill-prepared for war in 1939.

His conclusion was that England was caught unready because she was a democracy, a form of government which he described as one superior to totalitarianism because it was based on respect for man as a reasonable being but dangerously weak in preparing for war because it was a system essentially geared to peace.

If democracies were to survive, he found, their weaknesses must be recognized and corrected. "It is our problem," he wrote, "to find a method of protecting them in a world at war."

Though not claiming to have found the answers to the problem at that time, Mr. Kennedy goes so far as to say that if the democracies succeeded in winning the 1939 war, they must not be allowed to revert to the ways of weakness again. The United States, he asserted, must profit from the mistakes of England and "be prepared to take our part in setting up a world order that will prevent the rise of a militaristic dictatorship."

"To say that democracy has been awakened... is not enough. Any person will awaken when the house is burning down. What we need is an armed guard that will wake up when the fire first starts or, better yet, one that will not permit a fire to start at all."

Many things have changed since Mr. Kennedy wrote those words. In the intervening years he himself has been many things; a college student, a naval officer, a senator and now, president of the United States. His career has been remarkable, but even more remarkable is that his views on the necessity of eradicating the weaknesses of democracy remain completely unchanged.

However, his unwavering and unalterable dedication to this purpose carries with it the danger that it may itself destroy the very principle he seeks most to protect.

Thinking Aloud

... of shoes, and ships, and scaling wox...
By TOM TAYLOR

SOMETHING of the will-to-win argument that creeps up in sport has eventuated from the recent cricket Test match series concluded in Australia.

Maybe you don't follow cricket, so a word of explanation.

The MCC's England team was attempting to wrest back the Ashes from the Australians. The Ashes are a story in themselves, but suffice that although mythical they are symbolic of a trophy.

Equal in theory if not in physical fact to the Stanley Cup, for instance.

As it happens the Test series ended in a dead heat, a win each and three drawn games, which meant that Australia kept the Ashes.

The post-mortem which followed concerned the last game. So much hung on its outcome that it was a dour, unattractive struggle, neither side venturing the kind of sparkling cricket that thrills the spectators.

And before the series started both captains pledged they would play bright cricket.

Runs in cricket aren't the whole story, you see; there's the manner of getting them. A batsman could, and many do, play safe at all times simply not to be put out, picking only the loose balls to hit.

And that can be very boring to watch.

The complaint has been that in the final Test both sides were so afraid of losing that they didn't show the enterprise needed to win.

This may seem to contradict the will-to-win theory, but not really. The will-to-lose is of the same genre.

Now of course professional teams in any sport would do anything, almost, not to lose. Which means that they would do anything, almost, consistent with not running any risk to win.

The MCC team was half-professional and half-amateur, although the distinction is more academic than real and recently the difference has been wiped out by the new designation of "cricketers."

The will-to-win thesis is based on the assumption that if men don't have the will, almost to the point of obsession, they won't play so hard, and so well. I have never been able quite to follow this idea.

My credo includes the capacity of an athlete to go all out for sheer love of what he's playing, or even as a duty, without bursting into tears if he loses, or without the manager castigating him for not winning.

I rather gather this is an old-fashioned viewpoint, though.

Perhaps what sports needs is a touch of humor. The kind of humor that includes a gay, cavalier spirit. Bigtime, very financial, sport is of course a serious business. A team's fortunes at the gate depends on winning more often than losing. Yet it should be possible to lose without this being a stigma which suggests that the team didn't give of its best.

I should hope that politicians during the current election, for instance, also a most serious business, can find time for a smile that implies the world doesn't come to an end if they are on the short count of the ballot.

The will-to-win is commendable, so long as it doesn't put beyond the pale the pale good sportsmanship that can take a team.

The Joker is, too, that somebody must lose else nobody can win.

National Planning

An Economic Confederation

By R. M. FOWLER

(This is an extract from an address by Mr. Fowler to the annual Commerce Banquet at the University of British Columbia.)

IN a recent lecture, Professor Galbraith points out that "planning" is one of the fashionable words of our time, but also one of the least precise.

He says this absence of precision was well illustrated twenty years ago by the eminent British soldier and philosopher, Colonel Blimp who, noting the current concern for post-war economic prospects, was heard to say, "All this planning; it can only lead to chaos. But one thing you can say for chaos; it gives real scope for free enterprise."

I have myself encountered some of the reactions, both favorable and unfavorable, to the idea of planning on a national scale. Six months ago when I ventured to suggest that the European model of a "free, but planned, economy" might be considered by Canada, there were several editorialists—including some vigorous and colorful ones in this province—which accused me of patting forth some rather revolutionary and dangerous ideas that would destroy our democratic and parliamentary system.

Since then, the idea of national economic planning seems to have become more respectable and we now have all political parties supporting the purpose, if not the details, of our new National Economic Development Board.

But we are all still very vague as to what we mean by economic planning.

I believe myself that this new National Economic Development Board can be a useful first step in helping to increase public understanding of our economic problems and providing some sense of order and direction as to where we are trying to go as a nation. It cannot, of course, provide all the answers, and should not stand in the way of economic decisions that are needed immediately and urgently before the new board can be organized and begin its work. It is still too early to know how it will be used and how effectively it will be allowed to operate.

If the new board is tucked away as another among many advisory bodies, hidden in the remote recesses of some government department at Ottawa, it will do no great harm but no great good either. If it is regarded as a body of outsiders, chosen for their varied views and competence to provide the government with useful advice that may or may not be taken, it will amount to very little and will quickly cease to attract good men.

There are, I suggest, two essential elements in the operation of a company. First with the large scale of its operations, the complexity of technology and the conflicting claims of the market, hard and fast rules cannot be laid down for every contingency. The company depends on men and their freedom to adapt and experiment to achieve good results. The second essential is to define the goals desired for the company. Both elements are important.

If you define the goals and restrict individual freedom in achieving them, they will not usually be attained. If you give individual freedom and do not define the goals, there will be confusion and chaos.

So it is in a nation. The goals must be defined—in other words, there must be planning ahead. And there must be freedom to all the economic segments of the nation, industry, labor, agriculture and all the rest, to choose and adapt and experiment in achieving the defined national goals.

This is no kind of socialism, nor does it require ownership and control by government of the economic machine, as is so often claimed to be the end result of planning. Indeed, it is the antithesis of socialism in its strict sense. By co-operative, co-ordinated planning of the economy you avoid a centrally administered and controlled economy, which is a less successful, less productive and less efficient system than one that allows individual choice and initiative to operate.

The business of governing this country is a complex affair. The men responsible, both at the political and administrative levels in the public service and in business and labor in private life who also participate in developing national policies, are all grossly overloaded with immediate, short-term problems. Overload gives birth to the breed of men, the men who say no to anything new and different.

Consciously or unconsciously, they know that to say yes is to open the door to a vast new field of consequential puzzles and dilemmas. They take refuge in the ad hoc expedient when they ought to have a policy. They see what ought to be done in the next week or two, or more often, what cannot be avoided, but they have a troubled feeling that it does not point in the direction that policy, if only they had a little time to think it out, ought to be leading. So the decision is given ad hoc and all the positions of principle are reserved, so that nobody can guess what will happen next time and the successive pieces of a new policy have to be extracted one by one like teeth. There is not necessarily any opposition to the new line, but inability to find time to think it through creates timidity.

This is no criticism of our leaders in public or private life. They are generally men of great integrity and work harder and for longer hours than any respectable labor leader would permit for his card-carrying members, though not (I hasten to add) for himself. The fact is that the conditions of the enterprise have overwhelmed our leaders.

Unless we can create for our institutions we will be doomed to accept the ad hoc expedient and will never achieve the longer-range view of our problems. Formal economic planning is one device to cope with this problem.

It will only be done if the new Economic Development Board, and especially its chairman, are men of great ability, experience and courage. If they are free to enlist the services of a competent and excellent staff, and if they are given strong and consistent backing by the government. They must be encouraged and instructed to have an overriding concern for long-range economic factors rather than short-term political ones. They should also understand clearly that the clients they have to persuade are not only the government, but their other clients, the businessmen and trade unionists and other groups.

On the government side, there should be a powerful spokesman and responsible minister inside the cabinet whose job is to concentrate on the long-term economic plan. In the private sector, there should be a whole network of communications between the planning board and all segments of Canadian economic life, which will stimulate ideas and proposals from various industrial and labor groups to the central body and, in the reverse direction, transmit ideas and plans back to the private branches of activity for consideration and implementation. This can be a great national effort, a new economic confederation for Canada as we face the dangerous and exciting world of the Sixties.

There are miles more of this hectoring stuff, and of course, the usual final threat growled out of the side of the mouth of some official filing clerk.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Raphael Santi, one of the most celebrated Italian painters, was born 400 years ago today—in 1583. Despite the shortness of his life—he died in 1602—some 1,400 works are attributed to Raphael.

It was said of him that in his last years he foresaw artistic possibilities far beyond his

When I got through to the CBC, I was assured nothing was amiss. The program was work of young English composers in the International Society for Contemporary Music.

It is not only the moon that the up-coming generation is proposing to explore. It is farther out than that.

Others must have been as astonished as I was a few evenings ago to hear lunatic sounds coming out of the radio. After hastily checking my machine and finding it still functioning on other stations, I called the local CBC station, the program being a CBC hookup.

The sounds were wholly incredible. Two women are apparently uttering the chief noises such as ladies might make when having their gall bladders removed without benefit of anaesthesia. There was an instrumental accompaniment, though not actually an accompaniment, since the instrumental sounds bore no relation to the agonized wails of the ladies. As nearly as I could identify them, they were violins in the hands of untrained persons who were amusing themselves by seeing who could most hilariously

Baffling Form

Wordy Jungle

By CASANDRA
from London

A BAFLED friend of mine has sought my help in filling up the massive form necessary to claim payment of Post-War Credits.

In true pompous Whitehall style, it is addressed "To Certain Persons." By the time they have read this particular form, these Certain Persons will be Uncertain Persons.

The first page consists of twelve Qualifying Clauses and three Notes.

The second page has eight instructions on How to Claim, with one Note that confuses rather than clarifies.

Then follows the space that you have to complete. You are sharply challenged as to whether you were a widow on April 5, 1960, and, in the customary style of severe police interrogation, ordered to state "Yes" or "No."

If you are a member of the Royal Ulster Constabulary you are commanded to "Give particulars at (D) below of your Department, Grade, and Place of employment, and write here 'Option'."

The light thickens and the muck deepens as you wade into this wordy jungle:

"If you claim it under Class C—(1) write here the category numbers (1-8 overleaf) under which the claim is made (if under Category 6 write 'a'), 'b' or 'c' as appropriate."

If you are a luckless wretch under Category 9—"Write here the Category numbers (1, 4, 5 or 6) and the periods in each which make up the continuous period of 26 weeks. Give the dates as precisely as you can."

There are miles more of this hectoring stuff, and of course, the usual final threat growled out of the side of the mouth of some official filing clerk.

Others must have been as astonished as I was a few evenings ago to hear lunatic sounds coming out of the radio. After hastily checking my machine and finding it still functioning on other stations, I called the local CBC station, the program being a CBC hookup.

The sounds were wholly incredible. Two women are apparently uttering the chief noises such as ladies might make when having their gall bladders removed without benefit of anaesthesia. There was an instrumental accompaniment, though not actually an accompaniment, since the instrumental sounds bore no relation to the agonized wails of the ladies. As nearly as I could identify them, they were violins in the hands of untrained persons who were amusing themselves by seeing who could most hilariously imitate the braying of a jackass at sundown.

When I got through to the CBC, I was assured nothing was amiss. The program was work of young English composers in the International Society for Contemporary Music.

It is not only the moon that the up-coming generation is proposing to explore. It is farther out than that.

French Workers Strike Tomorrow

By PHIL NEWSON

A large portion of President Charles de Gaulle's continuing popularity among the French people is his undisputed claim that they never had it so good.

French incomes are going up. Economically, the country is developing faster than Germany and more than twice as fast as either the United States or Britain. There is a healthy surplus of exports over imports.

France, once the sick man of Europe, now is the strong man.

But there also is a problem which could drastically alter the picture.

The problem is creeping inflation, which has seen the cost of living jump 5.3 per cent in the last year and 17 per cent since de Gaulle devalued the French franc in 1959.

The result is that individual incomes barely have kept pace with increasing prices and in some cases have fallen considerably below them.

So long as he had the Algerian war to worry about, de Gaulle was able to remain fairly aloof from the problem and leave it in the hands of his experts.

The French government is the nation's largest single employer and it is the unions in state-owned industries who now are ready to make their bid.

In the state-run coal mines, some 230,000 workers have scheduled a two-day walkout for March 1 and 2. It is possible they will be joined by nearly 500,000 others on the state-run railroads and in the state-run gas and electricity industries.

The de Gaulle government has appealed to private employers to limit wage increases to no more than 4 per cent per year. But France has a labor shortage and the pressure of demand has in some cases forced wages up to more than twice the government ceiling.

This is the prosperity in which the government workers now demand they be allowed to participate.

They are supported by the Communists, who demand that savings resulting from the end of the Algerian war be pumped into wages instead of new armament.

In deciding upon direct action tactics, the unions are taking a leaf from the book of the French farmers.

In the summer of 1961, when the potato price collapsed, French farmers blocked roads with their tractors and forced the government to double its costs for price supports.

Mounting labor unrest and agriculture are in fact de Gaulle's most pressing problems.

De Gaulle's determination to protect French agriculture was a dominant factor in his veto of British membership in the European Common Market.

Agriculture remains the largest industry in France, but it operates at an efficiency below that of its neighbors. The government is pushing a program of modernization and is attempting to siphon off a sizable portion of farm workers into industry.

Solutions to the problems of labor and agriculture are necessary if the wage-price spiral is not finally to wipe out the economic miracle of France.

Cuba Election?

By CHARLES C. KEELY From Washington

Usually well-informed Cuban exiles predict Fidel Castro may hold elections in Cuba by the end of the year.

Since Communists dominate the only organized political party allowed on the Caribbean island, the outcome would be easy to predict.

Cuban exiles say that elections are part of a series of "agreements" now being negotiated between the Cuban premier and New York lawyer James Donovan.

Donovan, who masterminded the Christmas release of more than 1,000 Bay of Pigs invaders from Cuban prisons, is reported by the exiles to be representing the U.S. government in negotiations with top Cuban officials.

Donovan first won fame as the middleman in the exchange of Russian spy, Col. Rudolph Abel, for U.S. pilot Francis Gary Powers.

Cuban exile intelligence sources say Donovan's current talks with Fidel Castro also are designed to obtain the immediate release of 20 United States citizens still in Cuba. Four have been let go so far.

Another part of the bargain now being arranged with Castro, the exiles say, is a request that Pan American Airways resume flights to the island in the near future. Pan American ceased regularly scheduled operations to Cuba last October during the crisis over the Soviet military build-up there.

Castro also is said to have promised to release an estimated 75,000 political prisoners from Cuban jails in July.

All of this, according to the exiles, is part of an effort on Castro's part to pretty up his "hemispheric image" so that the door may be opened for future resumption of economic and political relations with the other American republics.

If Castro were to call for and hold elections, presumably he would be able to claim the Cuban Communist dictatorship was a "representative democracy." For the last several years, Cuban Reds have been insisting that the Castro regime amounted to "direct democracy."

Harsh Note to Russia

Mao Sets His Terms

By CARMAN CUMMING

The Chinese Communist party Wednesday in effect named its conditions for coming to the conference table with the Soviet Union to discuss ideological differences.

The terms are stern indeed, virtually demanding that Premier Khrushchev crawl to Peking with an olive branch in his teeth, begging forgiveness all the way.

Without naming Khrushchev—but without taking as many pains as usual to disguise the target of the attack—the Chinese statement asked:

"Do you or do you not consider now that the public attacks you have been making on fraternal parties were a mistake?"

Khrushchev Told To 'Crawl'

"Are you or are you not ready to admit this mistake and to apologize to the fraternal parties you have attacked?"

"Are you truly and sincerely ready to return to the proper course of inter-party consultation on the basis of equality?"

This tough approach is all the more surprising since it follows a period of several weeks in which both sides called for an end to polemics and gave evidence of wanting to patch up—or at least patch over—their split.

The possibility remains that Peking, feeling one down in the polemics competition, wanted a brisk final innings before settling down to conciliation.

But it made clear that the list of complaints at any such meeting would be long and bitter. They include:

● Russia's refusal to back China in the border dispute with India and its supplying of MIG jet fighters to India;

Time on Mao's Side

By RON POULTON

On the approach of the tenth anniversary of Stalin's death (March 9), some who toy with political puzzles don't even bother to ask whether Kremlin-style Communism has changed. Instead, they are asking how much it has changed.

Current events indicate the Kremlin was listening as hard as the West when Red China's foreign minister Chen Yi said: "We do not share the West's compunction about the sacredness of human life. Russia would be dragged in if the U.S. attacked us. Atomic weapons would be used."

"America and Russia would be destroyed. We might lose 300,000,000 people but we would still have 300,000,000. And we would be the strongest power on earth."

Kremlin policy is, therefore, no longer a simple question of Communism versus Capitalism. It is a question to be settled between Mao Tse-tung, who has people to burn; Nikita Khrushchev, who leads an intelligentsia pressing for a better life; and the West, which has the best armaments. But Washington, as well as Moscow, must pause when the Atomic Energy Commission reports that as long ago as December, 1956, a 9,200-ton underground nuclear blast was made near Lanchow in Red China's Kansu province.

And both must watch Mao, the undisputed leader of a nation which increases by 16,000,000 annually and already has an army of 2,500,000.

Both know that fear often cements pacts and that friendship was not involved when the Russian-Chinese agreement was signed Feb. 14, 1950. Peiping and Moscow haven't got along, in fact, since 1924.

And if Moscow is edging toward a non-aggression pact with the West, the idea is no more inconceivable than the sight of France coddling Germany to cold shoulder Britain a mere 18 years after war fertilized Europe with blood—some of which was Russian.

Khrushchev, sandwiched between the inflexible Mao and a wary West, continues to bob between truculence and affability. But he does not abandon his talk of the possibility of peaceful co-existence with the West.

Since the October day in 1961 when Chou En-lai huffed out of the Party Congress in Moscow peaceful co-existence has not sounded quite so much like a handy slogan to win time and delude enemies.

Time, after all, is on Mao's side.

Britain Seeking Trade Expansion

By JANE ARMSTRONG from London

Britain plans to press for general expansion of trade with the Commonwealth, with European Free Trade Association partners, with the Common Market and other countries.

Officials here have been worried by Britain's lethargy in facing up to the Common Market failure.

At last week's meeting of EFTA in Geneva, Edward Heath delivered another funeral oration on the Common Market negotiations, emphasizing how much the five still wanted Britain in despite French opposition.

This brought a sharp retort from the Norwegian delegate that EFTA was more interested in the future than in the past.

Although the final statement called for abolition of industrial tariffs among the seven members by 1966 to keep a step ahead of tariff Australia, Norway and Denmark.

The last two challenged Britain to give the same advantages to their agricultural products as the Commonwealth enjoyed.

Britain's unwillingness to make this concession caused bitter comment, especially from the Danes, that Mr. Heath had given away twice as much at Commonwealth expense when he was bargaining at Brussels.

to the Editor

To be considered for publication in whole or in part letters must be on subjects of general interest, not more than 100 words in length, and, if signed with a pen-name, must be accompanied by the writer's name and address.

It would appear from correspondence that our overseas representatives could learn much in courtesy and efficiency from the immigration department in Victoria.

Having experienced similar frustrations, I was concerned about clearance to Canada for my daughter, then at school in England.

Our local office not only facilitated this to an extraordinary degree but somehow conveyed a sense of personal welcome right through to London, an incident that made a lasting impression on one young new Canadian.

F. R. JEFFS.

B.C. House Helpful

I was surprised and concerned to read a letter in the Colonist criticizing the manners and behavior of the staff at British Columbia House London. I have never been to Canada House so I don't know how they behave, but every time I am in London I go to British Columbia House where I have always received kind attention.

Only recently, I had a charming note from Miss Babe Denbigh, the reception secretary, in reply to my request to have my mail addressed to B.C. House as on other occasions. When one has no fixed address in England I have always found it a great advantage to have mail sent to B.C. House and then forwarded to me wherever I may be.

(Mrs.) NINA M. HOLMES.

Utmost Courtesy

With reference to W. W. Bell's letter with regard to the treatment he received at B.C. House, I must disagree wholeheartedly. In the six months I was in London last year I was in and out of B.C. House frequently and always received the utmost courtesy, kindness and helpfulness from the staff there. I endorse the remarks about the Department of Veterans' Affairs Of Canada House I cannot speak as I was not there.

West First Soon In Oil, Gas

By HARRY YOUNG Colonist Business Editor

Boosts for Western Canada's fast-growing oil and gas industry came from two separate sources Wednesday.

R.C. Transportation Minister Westwood said $500,000,000 had been spent on oil and gas pipelines in B.C. in the last five years, and B.C. and other parts of Western Canada were overtaking Texas and Oklahoma as the chief centre of oil and gas interest on the North American continent.

He added the known recoverable gas reserves of B.C. were estimated at 70 to 90 trillion cubic feet—more than the entire known reserves of the U.S. a few years ago. Oil was found first in the Peace River area in 1951, and already oil reserves in the marketable area had risen to 450,000,000 barrels.

SECOND TO U.S.

In Calgary Elgin Bell of the Texas Sulphur Co. said that, within the next year or two, western Canada will overtake Mexico and France to become second only to the U.S. as the second largest producer of sulphur.

Western Canada sulphur is a byproduct of natural gas.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—

West Germany is prepared to join the United States in a multilateral nuclear force and France agrees it should do so, German defence minister Karl von Hassel said Wednesday.

Hassel made the statement to reporters at the conclusion of an hour-long meeting at the White House with President Kennedy.

The German minister said problems involved in the creation of the seaborne multilateral nuclear force proposed by the United States "might be solved in the next few months."

France intends to develop its own strategic nuclear force. But Hassel said when Chancellor Adenauer and other ministers were in Paris in January, "we informed President de Gaulle and defence minister Pierre Messmer that we would join a NATO nuclear force."

"The French understand the German position," Hassel said, "and they agreed and said they are ready to have Germany inside a NATO nuclear force."

De Gaulle, Hassel said, will press on with the development of an independent French force.

Although Adzhubel's visit has no official connection with the election, its timing was interpreted as a sign of the Kremlin's interest in the voting and a sign of support for Italian Communist chief Palmiro Togliatti, who faces opposition within the party ranks as well as without.

No Route Changed For New Service

None of the Veteran Stages'

bus routes outside Victoria will be shortened or dropped when a new service to Rocky Point goes into operation Friday, a spokesman for the firm said yesterday.

Brian Sylvester, president, said that special runs will be put on for civilian employees who formerly were given free bus transportation to the Rocky Point arsenal.

It will be at least two weeks before any move will be made to merge the new routes into existing service routes, he said.

Veteran Stages' routes cover View Royal, Colwood, Langford, Metcalchin and Happy Valley.

CALGARY (CP) — The wreckage of a twin-engine aircraft which carried four men to their deaths was found wedged between trees on a southern Alberta foothill Wednesday.

Beside the pilot, killed were a three-member CBC television crew which was photographing elk herds in the area 70 miles southwest of here.

INTENSIVE SEARCH

The red and white Apache aircraft, piloted by 27-year-old Bill Prentice, had been the object of an intense search by military and civilian planes since shortly after it failed to report back Monday.

Also killed were Norman Eaton, 40, who was producer of the documentary television show scheduled to be broadcast in May; and cameraman Len MacDonald, 33, and Charles Reigler, 33, all of Toronto.

An air force spokesman said it appeared the plane "flew right into the side of the hill," which is in the Porcupine range.

The crashed aircraft, its tail assembly showing among the dwarfed evergreens, was spotted at 9 a.m. MST on the east side of a high, razor-back ridge.

SEEN WRECKAGE

George Kelly of Calgary was pilot of the plane which first encountered the wreckage. Also aboard the Canadian Fina Ltd. craft were Par Fletcher, co-pilot, and Bob Neff, a spotter.

"The plane was all rolled up in a ball," said Mr. Kelly. "I think the right wing hit a tree."

"One man was thrown out and the others were wedged in the cabin."

He said it appeared the pilot of the Apache had tried to turn to avoid hitting something and in doing so his right wing hit one of the dead trees which stick up 30 to 40 feet in the area.

"A tree must have stopped them," he said. "They probably never knew what hit them."

Triple-Threat Genius On London Market

LONDON (UPI)—This modest ad appeared Wednesday on the front page of The Times of London:

"A genius—two universities, masters seven languages, some of most ancient and difficult... now offers to hire his brain, personality and experience..."

Mental Test Ordered

Psychiatric examination of a Vancouver man wanted in Victoria has been ordered by a San Francisco court.

Walter Reginald McCullough, 34, wanted in Victoria in connection with the theft of Social Credit MLA Donald Brothers' briefcase at the Empress Hotel, Feb. 12, was arrested in San Francisco Friday on a charge of stealing more than $10,000 in jewelry and furs from hotel rooms there.

He is wanted in Victoria for forging cheques with credit cards in the name of Mr. Brothers.

Inspector William Hansen of San Francisco said McCullough had been cooperative with police and most of the jewelry and furs had been restored to the owners.

Durelle's Comeback Ill-Advised

YVON DURELLE

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

Two years ago, when Yvon Durelle was an 18-day worker with the New Brunswick department of lands and mines, he vowed he would never return to boxing.

"I'll never be that hard up," he said. "I can always eat fish."

But even the fish wouldn't bite for the craggy-faced Baie Ste. Anne fighter. He had to sell his last fishing boat to survive and to keep his wife and four young children.

The onetime Canadian and British Empire light-heavyweight champion, who had earned more than $20,000 in the ring, was broke three months earlier. The Montreal boxing commission had barred him from fighting in that city after he took a bad beating from a hard-hitting gym fighter.

Yvon tried wrestling, as a few other washed-up old fighters had done. This career came to a sudden halt one night in Calgary when he tumbled out of the ring and broke a leg.

TRIES COMEBACK

Now, the man who has admitted he never knew how to box is back in the ring. "I can't box," he once told a friend. "The only way I can fight is to go straight ahead and punch. I can't go sideways or backwards."

The friend was Merv McKenzie of Toronto, Ontario athletic commissioner.

McKenzie recalled the conversation earlier this week when he read about Durelle's seventh-round knockout in Montreal over Cecil Gray of Halifax.

"The promoters certainly didn't over-match Yvon this time," McKenzie said in an interview. "If he was in with somebody good, it probably would be the end of him. This fight is just a teaser. Gray is nobody but, unfortunately, there's always a chance that a nobody will tag a guy and put him out of commission."

BARRED IN ONTARIO

McKenzie said he wouldn't allow Durelle to fight in Ontario.

"We certainly recognize the Montreal and the Canadian Boxing Federation suspensions and I can't figure why Montreal would allow him to fight there."

"The only reason I can think of is that commission members in Montreal are probably new and haven't seen Yvon in the ring. But surely they've heard of his fights and, although the Montreal commission is not a member of the C.B.F., I think it should take the advice of the federation and not allow him to fight. It's for his own good."

McKenzie was at ringside when Durelle took three fearful beatings—two from world light-heavyweight Archie Moore in Montreal and the other from Canadian heavyweight George Chavalo in Toronto.

"Yvon was knocked out in each of those fights. I have never seen a boxer take such beatings as he did."

In each fight he took at least 50 solid shots to the head. He was battered right down to the floor. His fighting career should have ended there.

"Durelle is a nice guy. He's frank and earnest, but everybody knows where nice guys wind up."

Auchterlonie Dead at 90

KIRKCALDY, Scotland (AP)—Willie Auchterlonie, winner of the British Open golf championship in 1893, died Wednesday at the age of 90.

Auchterlonie, one of the most famous players in British golf, was the professional to the Royal and Ancient Golf Club at St. Andrews for 25 years.

Mantle Pay—$100,000 Maris to Get $72,000

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Mickey Mantle, New York Yankee star with the booming bat and the fragile legs, stepped up to the $100,000 class Wednesday, a level he shares only with Willie Mays among active players.

Roger Maris, the other half of the M and M wrecking crew, came to terms an hour later for the same $72,000 he earned last year.

Thus the world champion Yankees gathered in their two high-priced stars on the same day, without any sign of a struggle.

Mays, DiMaggio, Ted Williams and Stan Musial are the only other players ever to earn $100,000 for a season.

Babe Ruth's top salary was $80,000, earned in the low tax years of 1930 and 1931.

The Yankees broke precedent by signing Mantle's contract to the newspaper men.

Mantle and the Yankees apparently agreed on the $100-000 figure back in January. The switch-hitting outfielder made about $85,000 in 1962.

Maris was expected to get a cut, but the Yankees said their only offer to him was the same figure as last year. After Mickey signed, Roger telephoned Yankee president Dan Topping in Miami and they quickly agreed.

THE PALMER METHOD

DIP THAT RIGHT SHOULDER

At downswing start, clamp your right elbow against your side (see illustration #1). This gives correct arc to the right shoulder and gets the shoulders in position so that they're on a line of impact which roughly parallels the intended line of flight.

At finish (see illustration #2), you can see the right shoulder is lower than the left end, at absolute finish, it will point directly at the target.

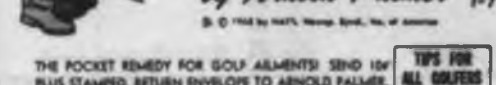

Illustration #3 shows incorrect shoulder position. They're both on too level a plane. The right shoulder, as you can see, is swinging around in the downswing instead of swinging down in an arc toward the ball. This erroneous action will cause the ball to hit down the left side of the fairway.

VICTORIA'S MOST LISTENED TO STATION

Trial on Three Charges Set After Two Hearings

Larry Alan Preston, 33, Regina, was committed for trial on three charges following conclusion of preliminary hearings in two courts yesterday afternoon.

The charges, on which Preston elected trial by judge and jury, are all of breaking and entering and theft. They involve A-Lo-Hi Market, 4142 Wilkinson, Dec. 22; Butler Bros. Supplies, 2046 Keating Cross Road, Jan. 2, and Town and Country Safeway, Jan. 6.

The hearings had been adjourned following presentation of the Crown's cases to allow Preston time to prepare his defence, which he conducted himself.

In Central Saanich court yesterday Preston called convicted burglar Paul Harry Schultz as a witness. Schultz is serving time for the Jan. 3 robbery of Spencer's Stores Ltd.

Schultz testified Preston was with him the night of the Butler Bros. break-in. The two men slept in the same bed at Preston's home that night, Schultz said. Prosecutor Alan Bigelow asked Schultz if Preston could have gotten up without him knowing it.

"He could have," Schultz said.

Schultz admitted he had just been released from the Washington State jail the early part of December, where he had served time for breaking and HMCS Fortune, James Bay, Cowichan and Miramichi of the Second Canadian Mine-sweeping squadron stationed at Esquimalt will take part in "Exercise Steelgate," a large-scale amphibious exercise on the California coast.

The exercise begins today with more than 44 ships of the United States Navy including the USS Valley Forge and two Jima and 24,000 United States Marines taking part.

Second Canadian Mine-sweeping Squadron is due back in Esquimalt on the morning of March 18.

entering. He said he had known Preston three years.

In Saanich court Preston asked for dismissal of both charges on the grounds the Crown had failed to prove he was connected with the crimes.

Preston's companion, David Daniel Frankham, testified in January that Preston was with him the night the two supermarkets were robbed.

"This evidence has not been corroborated," Preston said yesterday.

Magistrate Ostler told the accused he "should not be convicted" unless the evidence is corroborated but the "weight to be attached to the evidence is a matter for the jury."

A longshoreman was fined $200 in city magistrate's court for assaulting a customs officer at Ogden Point Friday.

Claude Peden, 1222 Glyn Road, was unloading spirits from the freighter Caledonia Star when customs officer Donald McCulloch stopped him and said he wanted to talk to him.

"At first he made as if to run but then he turned and swung at me," the officer told the court.

Train's Jump Kills Seven

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—A passenger train jumped the tracks in rugged bush country in northwest Argentina Tuesday night. Reports reaching here Wednesday said seven persons were killed and 30 injured. The accident occurred on a rain-soaked rail bed.

New Plates or $25 Fine Truck Owners Warned

Truck owners who do not display the new commercial vehicle licences after midnight tonight face $25 fines, Police Chief John Blackstock told a city police commission meeting yesterday.

The meeting was attended by George Archer who is making a police survey for the attorney-general's department.

Starting Friday, the lack of the new commercial licence will "be handled the same as expired automobile licences," the chief said.

Chief Blackstock told the board two trained police dogs are available. The commission decided to wait for the budget and Mr. Archer's report.

Residences for University

By PAUL WILLIAMSON

Victoria University could have student residences in three or four years, according to Dean of Women Mrs. Phoebe Noble.

Mrs. Noble is the chairman of a faculty committee looking into the possibilities for student residences.

Concerning students' council criticism of the fact that no students are on the committee, Mrs. Noble stressed that she was "very pleased that the students are taking an interest in the development of student residences."

She pointed out that it is a faculty committee, and that students are not necessary on it at this time.

"I hope that the students will keep a file of their ideas up to date, so that when the proper time comes we will be able to make use of their ideas," she said.

Michael Hutchison, member of the students' council's committee on residences, said the students "have definite plans."

The student committee was set up because the students' council was approached by the representative of a firm offering a package deal on residences.

Hutchison said that within the next two weeks the students' council will send representatives to UBC to look into their residences.

87 Vehicles Cost $566

NEW YORK (AP) — If you needed a car and didn't have much money, Wednesday was the day.

Eighty-seven vehicles abandoned on the streets were sold at auction for a total of $566. The cheapest, a dump truck, went for $38. The cheapest, described as an old heap, brought $1.

Rockets for Queen

HOBART, Tasmania (Reuters) — A brilliant 30-minute fireworks display Wednesday night climaxed the first day of the visit by Queen Elizabeth and her husband, Prince Philip.

Multi-colored rockets soared over Hobart harbor to about 2,000 feet, producing cascades of light which illuminated the Derwent estuary.

Vice-Principal Quits To Teach Again

President H. M. Palson of the B.C. Teachers Federation has told Sooke school board he resigned as vice-principal of Elizabeth Fisher Junior High School because he wants to go back to the classroom.

Mr. Palson, on leave of absence from the school for one year while he attends to federation business, resigned last month but gave no reason then for his action.

A school board spokesman said last night, however, Mr. Palson, a professional advance teacher with 22 years' experience, said in an interview he would be happier following the vocation for which he was trained.

That's All Say Reds

GENEVA (AP) — The Russians seemed Wednesday to be moving away from the idea of any international control of a nuclear test-ban treaty. A feeling of pessimism grew within the 17-nation disarmament conference.

Premier Khrushchev announced in Moscow the Soviet Union will not go beyond his offer to permit two or three on-site inspections a year on Soviet soil, an offer Western authorities consider inadequate.

And, whereas the U.S. has suggested seven of these robots should be put on Russian territory in addition to on-site inspection, Tsarapkin said the Soviet Union would admit only three.

William C. Foster, chief U.S. negotiator, sought to break the conference stalemate by getting the test-ban discussions referred again to the American-British-Russian subcommittee for detailed talks. Russia did not reply.

Mr. Belmont next? Mr. Palson has taught at the school since September, 1958, and was appointed vice-principal Aug. 1, 1959. He probably will go to nearby Belmont Senior High School as a science or mathematics teacher in September, said the spokesman.

"The school board will be happy to retain him as a teacher and will soon advertise for a vice-principal to fill the vacant post."

MARGARET PETERSON
...on air

By TED SHACKLEFORD

Renowned Victoria artist Margaret Peterson is excitedly making plans for a 12-month tour of Europe and Central America to study great temples under a $4,000 Canada Council grant.

She plans to return with ideas for the incorporation of mosaic and mural art in buildings for the new Vic-tria University at Gordon Head.

"I'm walking on air," Miss Peterson said last night. "I'll be leaving in about 10 weeks for Europe to study temples with the emphasis on early Romanesque and the art of the Middle Ages."

"I expect to be gone for a year. I have a very detailed schedule I must fill. It is a tremendously complicated and ambitious undertaking and very thrilling, too."

"If I live very judiciously I might be able to live for 15 months on the grant."

Miss Peterson's husband, author Howard O'Hagan, busy on a collection of short stories to be published in the fall, will remain in Victoria for the present.

"I hope to meet my husband in Central America as soon as I have finished my work in Europe. I am going to see Mayan temples and University City in Mexico. Howard speaks fluent Spanish."

University City is world famous for its murals and mosaic walls on buildings.

A second Canada Council award was given to a Victoria resident — Prof. Anthony Emery, of Victoria University, who was given a $4,500 grant.

He will leave at the end of the university term for a one-year study tour of Canada, the United States and Europe.

Prof. Emery came to Victoria in 1953 and taught in local schools before continuing his studies. He was appointed assistant professor of history and English at Victoria University in 1957.

Regular Likely 37.9 Cents Today

Gas Price Skids Again

Four Victoria "off-brand" gasoline dealers precipitated a new price avalanche Wednesday afternoon when they lowered their regular to 37.9 cents a gallon from the previous 38.9 cents.

They are two Mohawk and two Pay-N-Save stations. But a "brand" gasoline dealer said he and other stations may counter the move.

"I have it on pretty good authority we will cut another cent off our price to 38.9 cents first thing tomorrow morning," Al Kubicek, operator of Al's (Imperial Oil) Service Station Ltd. at Hillside and Shelbourne, told the Colonist late last night.

HAVE LED FIELD

Majority of service stations today then may sell gasoline at 38.9 cents. So far, Imperial Oil stations have led the field of gasoline stations on consignment in lowering prices.

As predicted by provincial director George Hankinson of the Automotive Retailers Association of B.C. last week, "most independent operators are now on consignment," said local union president Earl Reynolds last night.

"I am on consignment as well," he added.

Only two weeks ago the association was determined to fight "going on consignment" until economic conditions prevented them from holding out any longer.

"But I'll be off and on consignment," Mr. Reynolds said. "The oil company said that was fine with it."

Portage Inlet Protest Needs Names

City hall yesterday received a petition opposing Saanich council's plan to discharge sewage effluent into Portage Inlet but there were no signatures attached.

A letter accompanying the petition asked city council to file an official protest with the provincial pollution control board—similar action to that taken recently by Esquimalt council.

MORE THAN 550

"With very little effort, more than 550 signatures were obtained, showing the public's concern over any added pollution to this Greater Victoria potential recreation area," the letter said.

Writer of the letter—C. G. Blogs, 2771 Craigowan Road—was advised the signatures would be needed for city council to consider the petition.

Did Driver Learn Lesson?

It was a run-up who was most frightened when a pedestrian fell in front of a moving car at Fernwood and Gladstone yesterday.

The woman stumbled while trying to get out of the car's way and fell to her knees suffering minor injuries. The car stopped on time. She didn't take the car's number as she thought the motorist had learned his lesson.

Future Command

Checking over Princess of Nanaimo Wednesday are Chief Engineer Walter Miller, left, and Chief Officer William Goodwin. Two men will be passengers on ship's 19-day voyage to Halifax via Panama Canal which starts today but will assume command when it begins its run between St. John, N.B., and Digby, N.S.—(Ryan Bros.)

Liberal Battle?

Two More Hats In Ring Today

By JACK FRY

Two nominating conventions for the April 8 federal election will be held in Greater Victoria today—Liberals in Victoria and Socials in Esquimalt-Saanich.

A three-way fight for the Liberal nomination has the party so stirred up Grit officials think their meeting in Central Junior High School at 8 p.m. will be the largest nominating convention ever held in Victoria.

Association president Geoffrey Ellis said hundreds of new members have joined the association in the past three months.

857 RECORDED

He expects to see about 700 of the 857 recorded Liberals at the meeting.

The months' old rivalry between the two principal candidates, city lawyer Foster Isherwood and retired naval officer David Gross, along with the late entry of Oak Bay realtor Jack Mears, "has stimulated a lot of Liberals into action one way or another," he said.

The Esquimalt-Saanich Social Credit nominating convention will be held in the View Royal community hall on the Old Island Highway. Sole candidate to throw his hat into the ring yesterday was Edward Lum, 34, 1886 Feltham Road, a greenhouse operator and owner of the Cherry Bend Hotel.

Zero Hour For Plates

This is the last day to buy 1963 license plates for vehicles.

From midnight tonight any vehicle on a street or highway—even if it is parked—must be fitted with 1963 plates or the owner will be liable for prosecution.

In House Today

Debate on Premier Bennett's salary vote continues when the legislature meets at 3 p.m. today. After that, the House is scheduled to begin discussing agriculture department estimates.

Godfrey Resigns Civil Defence Post

Civil defence co-ordinator in Victoria for the past five years, Commodore V. S. Godfrey last night tendered his resignation on the eve of a projected reorganization of the service.

Addressed to Mayor R. B. Wilson, his resignation will be received at city hall this morning.

"I am 65, you know, and I think it is time I played a little golf and did some fishing," Commodore Godfrey said last night.

YOUNGER MAN

"I think a younger man would be able to get more results by running around a bit more."

Appointed co-ordinator when the four Greater Victoria municipalities were members of the one, central civil defence organization, Commodore Godfrey has seen Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt drop out to form their own organizations.

Withdrawal of Esquimalt recently has left the city with the same staff and offices that were used when all municipalities belonged.

NOT ENOUGH

"I don't think there is enough for me to do now as the other municipalities have been encouraged to set up their own organizations by provincial government policy," Commodore Godfrey explained.

"I expect my resignation to take effect at the end of March when the new budget will be decided. I felt it would be more convenient all round to resign now."

Chairman of Victoria Civil Defence Control Board, A. J. L. W. McLean praised Com-

COMMODORE GODFREY

modore Godfrey's work as co-ordinator last night.

"We at city hall appreciate the leadership he has given," he said.

"Commodore Godfrey has been responsible for all civil defence activities in Greater Victoria and in charge of civil defence training."

"He has had more than 6,000 persons in Greater Victoria enrolled and trained through his office."

Ald. McLean said withdrawal of Esquimalt would mean a complete revamping of the civil defence organization in the city.

Bulb Growers Pay Tribute

An American bulb growers' association paid tribute to three Canadians this week for research carried out before their retirement in recent years from the federal experimental farm at Sault Ste. Marie.

Dr. William Newton of Swartz Bay, R. J. Hastings of Victoria, J. E. Boshier of Sidney and two American scientists who recently retired from the Western Washington experimental station, were honored by the Northwest Bulb Growers Association in a banquet Tuesday at Puyallup, Wash.

Each was presented with an inscribed silver tray.

Dr. Newton, 68, retired four years ago from his position at the experimental farm as director of plant disease research for B.C. coastal regions.

He said last night that the American growers are now producing disease and pest-free bulbs in such large quantities in the Pacific Northwest that they are "able to compete with the Dutch on their own doorstep."

The association ships 10,000,000 iris bulbs annually to Canada off the French coast, where they are used by greenhouse operators to supply the London market with fresh blooms, he said.

Repair Bill Paid On Impounded Ship

The $3,000 repair bill owing to Victoria Machinery Depot for work on the Liberian freighter Cinosa was paid yesterday, VMI comptroller Drummond Taylor said here last night.

The ship was impounded at New Westminster Monday on a B.C. Admiralty Court warrant.

The 7,000-ton freighter had been repaired three weeks ago and was about to leave for Puerto Rico.

Big Brother Unit Considered Here

A special committee will be formed within 10 days to investigate the need for a full-scale Big Brother service in Greater Victoria to help fatherless boys.

The committee will make a detailed study of the need for the scheme and if a need is established the committee will also consider ways of setting up a branch of the Big Brother organization in Greater Victoria.

Decision was made at a meeting last night by the board of directors of the Community Welfare Council which met to hear spokesmen for the Vancouver branch of Big Brothers of B.C. Ronald Waring.

A recommendation that the committee be appointed was

Cyril Chapman Ends Long Service Today

Today is Cyril Chapman's last day as manager of the Empress Hotel.

The round faced, good-humored veteran hotelman who has presided over the mammoth institution on Government Street since 1955 retires tomorrow under Canadian Pacific Hotels superannuation rules.

Leslie C. Parkinson, formerly of Montreal, takes over as manager of the Empress Friday. Mr. Chapman plans a reception for him Friday night.

Mr. Chapman said he plans to relax for a few weeks and then take on another position in the Victoria area. He did not elaborate.

He joined Canadian Pacific Hotels in 1923 in Montreal and served the organization in Regina, Lake Louise, Winnipeg, Banff and Toronto.

For 20 years he was manager of the Log Chateau of the Seigney Club, Montebello, Que., before taking over the Empress.

Mr. Parkinson joined the organization in Toronto in 1929. He was manager of the Digby Pines Hotel, Digby, N.S., from 1931 to 1935. In 1938 he was appointed manager of food and beverage services for the hotel chain.

Basil FitzGibbon

that Man in the Kitchen

In China, many, many centuries ago, a farmer and his wife working away in their rice fields, discovered to their consternation that their house was on fire. The farmer and his wife ran as fast as they could but by the time they reached the house, they were too late to stop the blaze and all they could do was stand by and watch it burn to the ground. Later on while looking through the ruins for any items that might be salvaged, the farmer discovered the carcass of a piglet that had been caught in the conflagration. He picked up the burned pig and found the aroma so tantalizing that he could not resist tasting it, and found it so delectable that he and his wife sat down and had a first class meal. They related their experience to friends and neighbors, and in no time at all roast pork became a great favorite. This sad little tale may or may not uncover the origin of roast pork, however, there is no doubt at all that the Chinese were amongst the first people to include pork in their cuisine, and even to this day pork enjoys a prominent position on Chinese menus.

Nowadays, of course, pork is a very popular meat. It is economical and easy to cook. However, because it is killed by bleeding, this meat requires some attention and should not just be thrown into the oven or the frying pan willy-nilly. The flavor can be improved immeasurably by the use of herbs and spices. Here are some recipes and remember that pork should be cooked long and slowly.

ROAST LOIN OF PORK
(Preheat oven to 325°)
One 6 lb. loin of pork (including the rind), garlic, salt and pepper, cloves, flour.

Slice one clove of garlic into slivers and using a sharp knife, insert the slivers into the top and under side of the roast.

Rub the roast with salt and pepper and dust lightly with flour and then insert cloves all over the top of the roast. Place on a rack in an uncovered roasting pan and roast in the 325° oven for 25 to 28 minutes to the pound.

If the idea of the cloves does not appeal to you, try a little Rosemary or Sage which you can rub into the meat with the salt and pepper. The shoulder and leg roast of pork can be prepared in the same way but for my money the leg roast has one definite advantage—it can be purchased with the outer skin or crackling on it. The preparation for cooking is simple—using a sharp knife, score the rind across the roast, making incisions at intervals which correspond to the thickness of the slices to be served when the roast is carved. Season the roast in your favorite manner and cook as outlined in the recipe above.

With pork I invariably serve apple sauce and to give variety I will sometimes add horseradish sauce to it. If I do not serve apple sauce, I will add sliced apples to the roasting pan during the last half hour that the roast is cooking. If you try this, remember to remove most of the excess fat from the pan before adding the apples. Another item that is good with roast pork is savoury pudding—this is basically Yorkshire Pudding to which you add Summer Savoury and/or sage and cook in the usual way, but make sure that you have the fat good and hot.

Grey Flannel Suit 'Dull'

By PATRICIA RUBAK

TORONTO (CP)—The man who always plays it safe with a grey flannel suit is just as dull, fashion-wise, as the woman who goes everywhere in a little black dress, says fashion consultant Joy Davies.

"Today men's fashions are changing almost like women's, though not quite as quickly. And men should not be afraid to experiment with the new looks, colors and fabrics."

THREE MAIN STYLES

The three main looks in men's suits today are the Edwardian look with high buttoned jackets and light pants; the sportier tweedy look; the "middle of the road" look with the looser fitting one- or two-button jacket. "Baggy pants and heavy padded shoulders are out."

The Edwardian look is considered extreme and generally avoided by executives, but too many have gone to another extreme—the calculated drabness and uniformity of Madison Avenue grey and white.

Shirts in shades of pearl grey and beige, or with small stripes, often complement skin tones and brighten a man's appearance, she says.

Waistcoats both colored and matching, "complete with watch chain," are also back in style. "Lots of men are color blind when it comes to ties," says Miss Davies. They should choose ties in complementary rather than somber colors. And although a bow tie does not suit every man, it will give many an air of jaunty.

Mr. Young and Mr. Tiffany report from

TOKYO

Greetings from Japan's capital—a bustling metropolis of over ten million—a city where East meets West, and where ancient traditions are inextricably intertwined with modern technology. From our windows at the Hotel Imperial or strolling on the Ginza, we see colorful business alongside of grey flannel business suits; we visited the serene Shinto shrines and the Imperial palace—and admired the efficiency of big city offices.

Above all, we marvelled at the nimble Japanese, whose skill and patience can produce an intricate electronic microscope, landscape a miniature garden, paint an exquisite scroll—or "operate" on a pearl-bearing oyster.

That brings us to the review of the fashion for being here—the selection of cultured pearls. This industry constitutes a fascinating tale of romance, "big business" and man's skill. Like a huge marine monarchy, thousands of watery acres comprise the oyster farms. The "operation"—an insertion of tiny irritant bead—in performed by highly trained girls who live in nun-like seclusion to preserve manual dexterity and mental concentration. Their profession, like that of the diving girls, is passed on through generations; and each pearl cultivator jealously guards his "trade secret".

Despite years of inflexible patience and care, only about 45% of the oysters survive; and at most, about 3% yield marketable pearls. Nevertheless, the exotic enterprise produces over 50 tons of pearls annually, worth almost $30 million. The Ministry of Agriculture and Forestry maintains strict control over the traditional quality and prestige.

It is with regret that, after an enjoyable and profitable visit, we say goodbye to Japan... to embark upon a flight to Hong Kong.

Bride Wears White Lace

Rev. A. G. Atkins officiated at the candlelight service in Gordon Head United Church recently when Louise Bertha Cameron was united in marriage with Mr. Brian Judge.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Cameron, Metchoin Road, was given in marriage by her father.

Her white length wedding dress was of white lace and was styled with lily point sleeves and seed pearls outlining the scalloped neckline.

A pearl tiara held her lace bordered chapel length veil and she carried a spray of red roses and white carnations.

Attendants were the bride's three sisters, Mrs. M. Abrahamson, matron of honor, Miss Linda Cameron, bridesmaid and four year old Harriet, flower girl.

The senior attendants wore pink taffeta dresses and the flower girl had a full skirted dress of pink organza. All carried bouquets of pink tulips and narcissi.

Mr. J. S. Judge was best man and Mr. Charles and Mr. William Price and Mr. Robin Cummins acted as ushers.

A reception was held in the Fellowship hall where a three tiered cake centred the bride's table. Mr. S. Vallis proposed the toast.

For a wedding trip to Washington, Oregon and California the bride travelled in a beige suit with matching top coat and hat. Her corsage was a yellow orchid. Mr. and Mrs. Judge will make their home at 1295 Hastings Street.

Expandable Bedrooms

NEW YORK (UPI) — So you have four children and only two bedrooms in the pediatric ward of your home.

This problem of creating individual privacy for each youngster can be solved without doubling up.

Divide one good-sized room into two.

Designers working with a nine-by-15 bedroom decorated it into two distinctively different bedrooms for a small brother and sister.

To make the best use of space and to give an uncluttered look, the beds, chests and other furnishings are built-in units. The all-important divider—making two rooms out of one—consists of louvred panels on top of four chest units, two for each room. The louvres can be adjusted to admit light and air.

All surfaces — walls, chests and shelves — are covered with Formica laminated plastic which can be cleaned with a damp cloth thus eliminating the need for repainting.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann: A woman who wrote to you wanted to know why blondes have a reputation for being sexier than other women. I can tell her why. Because they ARE sexier. A blonde will attract more attention from men and I have proved it.

I am a beautician, 41 years old. Ten years ago I decided to make a personal survey. I dyed my hair every color on the chart—from midnight blue-black to silver blonde. I got lots of whistles and propositions as a redhead, but believe me, Ann, when I went blonde my popularity too.

I noticed, too, that the blonder I got the more popular I became. As a honey blonde I did well, but when I hit the platinum shades—wow!

I married my present husband when I was an ash blonde. Two months later he asked me to go back to my natural shade—plain brown. He said, "Men like to date blondes but they don't want to be married to them." I agreed and we are getting along fine. No other man ever looks at me now.—THE OLD RESEARCHER.

happy to have the results of your survey. A woman who has dyed her hair every color on the chart is fortunate that she has any hair left. If you had continued your research, you might also have learned how men feel about bald-headed women.

Dear Ann Landers: Two weeks ago I married a wonderful fellow. We spent five glorious days in Florida on our honeymoon. We never had

Shower Party

Miss Dale McAlpine, whose marriage to Mr. Richard Gibson takes place March 1, was guest of honor at a kitchen shower given by Mrs. Diana Gibson, Mrs. Dorothy Jackson and Mrs. G. Wilson, at the home of Mrs. Myrtle Gibson, 491 West Saanich Road. Guests of honor received corsages. Games were played and refreshments served. Guests included Mrs. Pat Boon, Mrs. Tip Rose, Mrs. Vera Cox, Mrs. Janet Warren, Mrs. Elsie Erb, Mrs. Darlene Glenow, Mrs. Betty Warren, Mrs. Eleanor Palmer, Mrs. D. Sillars, Mrs. K. Stevenson, Mrs. D. McAlpine, Mrs. Mary Schwan, Mrs. G. Harwood, Mrs. Doris Ludham-Hobbs, Mrs. E. Marson, Mrs. Agnes Stevenson, Mrs. H. Burden, Mrs. Hyacinth Mellish, Mrs. L. Quayle, Mrs. D. any serious spats during our two-year engagement, so I believed this was good evidence we would get along well together after marriage.

Well, maybe I was wrong. We had the biggest fight of our lives on the third day of our honeymoon. The reason: I telephoned my mother three times.

My husband said he had no idea I was such a mama's girl. I'm very close to my parents and see no reason for him to be upset. I just wanted my folks to know I was thinking of them.

Is it wrong for a girl to be considerate of her parents after marriage?—R.N.C.

Dear R.N.C.: It's indeed admirable of a bride to telephone her parents while on her honeymoon, but three calls in three days is two calls too many.

You overdid it, Chicken. He's got a right to wonder about such frequent contact.

Former Victorian In Fashion Show

Today is an important date for Lois McGee, a former Victorian, now making her home in San Francisco.

Lois will be taking part in a fashion show at the Mark Hopkins Hotel in the southern city. There will only be two other models on the program which stars a leading ballerina with the Berlin Ballet.

The young model is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. McGee, 836 Dunsmuir Street. She studied dancing here with Florence Clough and Louis Lasser.

A little over a year ago Lois went to San Francisco where she works in a bank and continues her studies in ballet and modelling.

Enjoying puppet show at Central Baptist Church are Elaine Mastens, 11, of 4551 Viewmount, and Pat Chapman, 10, of 3691 Savannah. They were among many children who last night came to see illustrations of Bible stories by Rev. Roger Green, who is on six-week tour of Western Canada sponsored by Scripture Union of Canada.—(Bud Kinsman)

Puppets Give Life To Old Bible Tales

A Baptist minister who uses puppets to illustrate Bible messages for children is in Victoria this week as part of a six-week tour of Western Canada.

Rev. Roger Green, who started working with puppets while in Australia, is in Victoria under the sponsorship of the Scripture Union of Canada, whose aim it is to present Bible stories in such a way as to make them especially attractive to children and young people.

"This type of teaching lends a breath of fresh air to Bible reading," said Mr. Green. "It is used in Protestant churches in 120 languages and is aimed at the seven-to-13-year age level."

During his stay in Victoria, Mr. Green is illustrating a story based on the Pilgrim's Progress, called Climbing to the Sky.

He also offers prizes, stories and singing to entertain and instruct his young audiences.

Mr. Green will present his show at Central Baptist Church at 6:30 p.m. every night until Friday.

'Forgotten Man'

Help Unmarried Father Social Workers Told

MONTREAL (CP)—Rev. Patrick J. Ambrose, director of the Montreal Catholic Welfare Bureau, says the unmarried father is "the forgotten man" in welfare work.

"We give the unmarried mother the professional service required," he said in a report to the Federation of Catholic Charities, "but what about the unmarried father?"

Social agencies and social workers would do well to remember that he has feelings, and often needs considerable help.

Father Ambrose said the social agency should go out of its way to assure the unmarried father that professional counselling service is available. He should be brought into the overall plan in relation to the unwed mother and her child.

In another section of his report, Father Ambrose says "shotgun marriages" among teen-agers should be discouraged at all costs.

"Experience shows that most teen-age marriages fall apart.

"Teenagers in trouble should never marry because of fear, family pride, or community reaction, because the cards are heavily stacked against them if they do."

Airliner Becomes Flying Incubator

MONTREAL (CP)—A TCA Viscount flying from Val d'Or to Montreal Tuesday turned into a flying incubator to save the life of a one-week-old baby.

Forty passengers sweltered in 85-degree heat as Gerald Roy, a 2½-pound infant, was rushed to Montreal for an urgent operation.

Gerald had an accumulation of liquid on the brain and had to be kept in a 90-degree incubator. The incubator could not be operated aboard the Viscount, however.

As passengers sat uncomfortable in their shirt-sleeves, two stewardesses filled bottles with boiling water to keep the incubator at 90 degrees.

Divorce Case Long, Costly

EDINBURGH, Scotland (Reuters)—A divorce action by the Duke of Argyll—one of the longest and most expensive in British legal history—opened here Tuesday.

The duke, one of Scotland's wealthiest landowners, started the action more than three years ago but it was twice postponed because of legal arguments.

More Than Sabbath

Sunday for Rest, Says Ontario

OTTAWA (CP)—The Ontario government contended Wednesday that the Lord's Day Act is not aimed solely at the observance of the Christian sabbath on Sundays.

W. C. Bowman of Toronto, counsel for the Ontario Attorney-General, told the Supreme Court of Canada that the object of the act is to create a day of rest by prohibiting commercial activities one day a week.

BOWLING ALLEY

He made the observations after John J. Robinette of Toronto, counsel for two former Hamilton, Ont., bowling alley operators, asked the court to rule that the act violates a section of the Canadian Bill of Rights guaranteeing Canadians freedom of religion.

Walter Robertson, 34, and Fred Rosstam, 27, former operators of the Hamilton Centre Bowl, were convicted in February, 1962, of operating the alley on Sunday contrary to the Lord's Day Act. They were fined $25 and costs and lost an appeal against their convictions in the Ontario Appeal Court.

STRIKES AT FREEDOM?

Mr. Robinette's main argument is that the act imposes a Christian religious observance on all Canadians whether or not they are Christians and that this is contrary to freedom of religion guaranteed in the Bill of Rights.

Mr. Bowman said the Crown disagrees with Mr. Robinette's contention that the act is related solely to religion. Its position was that the act created one day of rest for all Canadians.

Several members of the court questioned Mr. Bowman's statement that the day of rest created on Sundays by the act carries no religious significance.

"If it's a day of rest why is the act called the Lord's Day Act?" asked Mr. Justice Robert Taschereau.

"If it's a complete day of rest no one would go to church,"

Child Survives

HOPE (CP)—A woman died in the wreck at 5:30 a.m. when a motorist was killed and a little girl passenger injured Wednesday when their car went out of control and crashed into a pile of rocks beside the Hope-Princeton Highway, 20 miles east of here. Police withheld identification pending notification of relatives.

A passing motorist discovered the wreck at 5:30 a.m. The girl suffered a broken wrist and is in good condition in hospital.

Militia Duties Fixed

By DON GAIN

An enemy attack on Vancouver Island would see 25 Militia Group taking over the work of communications, traffic control, rescue and first aid, a militia spokesman said here last night.

"It would be done in co-operation with civil defence units and government bodies," the spokesman said. "One of our first operations would be the forming of rescue teams to re-enter devastated areas."

BRICKING FIELD

The militia group travelled to Cobble Hill Sunday for a briefing on the part they would play in a national survival emergency.

After the briefing Col. Peter Ramsay, commanding officer of the group, took his staff and staff commanders to Duncan to visit the Victoria target area headquarters.

TRAFFIC PLANS

"In the target area headquarters there is a permanent planning staff," Col. Ramsay said last night.

"They have air photographs of the whole area, road maps with traffic plans. They have made a survey of population concentrations, pinpointing schools, public buildings and other possible shelters."

A DRY RUN

"Sunday's exercise was the second phase of our national survival planning," the colonel said. "The first phase was carried out in Operation Fanout about a month ago."

Operation Fanout was a dry run of summoning militia per-exercise dealt with moving personnel to report to their units the personnel to an assembly in case of emergency. Sunday's area.

Is your dog a home-wrecker, too?

MILK-BONE satisfies the bone hunger of your dog.

A dog needs to chew, and knows it. In the absence of a bone, even the best-trained dog will find something else to chew—often something he shouldn't. But there are few bones in today's larders. Many that are available are not safe or good for your dog. That's why the modern dog goes bone-hungry.

The answer is MILK-BONE—the biscuit with the real bone shape that makes wonderful chewing, without a real bone's tendency to splinter or upset the digestion. MILK-BONE also gives your dog all the important nourishment found in milk, meat, bone-meal and vegetables. Get MILK-BONE in the biscuit size that suits the size of your dog—regular or large.

MONTREAL (CP) — Right next to the light and airy modern bank in Longueville stands a rugged grey fortress.

It is there not so much to preserve the bank's values as to preserve a bit of French-Canadian history.

Charles Le Moyne, Baron de Longueville, came to Canada in the 1640s and grew rich in the fur trade. His 11 sons left their mark on all of the North American continent as fighters, explorers and governors.

His seigniorial mansion has long since disappeared and the city of Longueville sold the site several years ago to the bank. Lovers of history protested bitterly at the projected desecration of an historic site, but the taxpayers of Longueville voted in a referendum to sell the land anyway.

The bank's officers took note of the arguments and decided to build their bank branch, but to make half of it a reproduction of an old French fortress.

Thus the ancient and the modern stand side by side, separated by a moat. To get from the bank to the fortress, you cross a covered bridge.

Inside, the fortress holds several bank offices and the Le Moyne museum, containing original documents left by the baron and his sons.

OWN MUSEUM
The bank's own museum is also there. It holds antique coins and historical papers of the bank.

The safety deposit boxes are in a room that stands where the arsenal of the baron's mansion stood. The four small chambers holding the safety deposit boxes are made to resemble the jail cells of the original building.

Most famous of the Baron's sons was Pierre Le Moyne d'Iberville, known as the conqueror, who fought the English and the Indians at Hudson Bay and in the United States and the Caribbean.

DIED FIGHTING
Other sons extended the French empire down the Mississippi and founded Illinois, Mobile and New Orleans. Francois Le Moyne de Bienville served as governor of Louisiana.

Most of the sons died fighting. Jacques Le Moyne de St. Helene was killed during the siege of Quebec by the British in 1690. Paul Le Moyne de Maricourt died in an expedition against the Indians, and so did de Bienville.

Louis Le Moyne de Chateaugay was killed while fighting under his brother d'Iberville against the English at Hudson Bay.

D'Iberville himself died of a fever while on a campaign against Havana.

Disney Movie Late in Arrival
The Walt Disney film Almost Angels, featuring the Vienna Boys' Choir, which has been announced as opening at the Capitol Theatre Friday, will not be available here until March 15.

Roman Arena, TV in Students' Show

By BERT BINNY
A review of entertainment through the ages in the subject of E.H.S. Capades, a variety evening to be presented by Esquimalt High School students at 8 p.m. Tuesday.

The review starts with the Romans providing their entertainment by tossing Christians to hungry lions, then moves on to the medieval era.

This was the time when anyone who could not read was considered scarcely better than a boor or beggar. The program at this point will favor the singing of these roundays.

The pioneering age is also included when grizzly bears and Indians provided the hazards formerly presented by the lions.

ANOTHER FEATURE
This caused exceptional light-footedness along with the ability to dodge—giving birth to the art of square and round dancing, another feature of the Esquimalt program.

Another form of entertainment to be presented in vaudeville, first presented by Tony Pastor in New York Oct. 21, 1884. It bursts into prominence again with a similar show in the Esquimalt program in the school auditorium, with Gerry Guest producing.

Following will be the silent-film days with memories of Douglas Fairbanks Sr., Rudolph Valentino, Mary Pickford, Dorothy and Lillian Gish, William S. Hart, Charlie Chaplin, Jackie Coogan and the Keystone Cops.

Also included on the program are glimpses of the Great White Way, television and night club shows. Tickets are obtainable from any Esquimalt High School student: $1, and 50 cents for students.

Garden Notes

Sow Late, Reap Early

By M. V. CHERNEY, FRHS

I think the question which bothers the novice hobby gardener more than anything else is when to put his seeds in the ground. Garden books aren't much help here, for they all seem to assume every gardener is the proud owner of a glass greenhouse with thermostatically controlled heat and automatic ventilation. If you don't have any glass, you are an inferior creature from outer darkness, beyond the pale and unfit to mingle with the elite.

Most of us are forced to get along without as much as a coldframe to raise our seedlings in, and yet we seem to make a go of it somehow. The trick is to become a Johnny-come-lately, sowing late rather than early and going by the texture and warmth of the soil rather than by any date on the calendar.

It never ceases to amaze me how much faster plants seem to grow when the sowing is delayed until the soil is really warm and has lost some of its excess spring moisture. Time and time again I have seen plants from a late sowing overtake and pass those from an earlier sowing which have been checked in their growth by cold spring winds, their leaves taking on a blue, pinched look.

We had a good example of this in last year's free seed offer of hybrid zinnias. We had a spot of cool wet weather in early May last year about the time the zinnia seeds were mailed out, and those up-and-coming readers who bunged the seeds in the ground right off the bat didn't have too much luck with their plants, while those laggards who waited for summery weather were most enthusiastic over their flowers.

On the other hand, there are some seeds which can be planted in almost liquid mud and still make a showing of sorts—onion and parsnip seed, smooth-seeded peas, black-seeded sweet peas (but not the kinds with white, grey or fawn-colored seeds), snapdragons, cornflowers and the like. Even these, will do a lot better if given more congenial germinating conditions.

The best accessory for the glassless gardener is a specially constructed seed bed for the raising of seedlings, which can be transplanted later to their proper growing sites. It doesn't have to be a big bed—you can raise a surprising number of baby plants in a patch no larger than your dinner table—but it must have really good drainage and some protection from the cold winds of spring. And, of course, it must lie in full sun.

The ideal site for such a bed is up against a tall fence or wall facing the south, with no overhanging tree branches to cast any shade. The wall will shield the seedlings from that bitter northeasterly wind we often get in April and early May and will radiate considerable stored heat through cool nights.

It is best to raise the bed six inches or so above the surrounding soil level, using old lumber, stones or even slabs of sod for the retaining walls. Rather than using the native backyard dirt, the bed should be filled with "made" soil—a mixture of good loam, sand and peat moss, much as you would use for pot plants indoors, and enriched with a little lime and superphosphate.

It is almost unbelievable what can be done with such a simple seed bed. With its excellent drainage, the soil will become workable a good month before the rest of the garden and many of the hardier seeds can go in as early as March.

When the raising of the spring plants is completed, the little bed can be put to good use through the summer months for the growing of perennials from seed and for the propagation of cuttings.

CHARLES McDOWELL Looks Into Future

Machine Thinks Too Much

Victor Azgoplian, senior scientist at the Servomechanics Research and Development Centre, Santa Barbara, said a computer at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology already has written dozens of television westerns in a single afternoon. Until five years ago, he said, most mathematicians and engineers thought machines would never be able actually to think. But since then machines have passed every test of "thinking" they have been given. The ultimate thinking machine, which may be created very soon, will be self-programming, he said.

—The Los Angeles Times

Supervisor: Hello, Murkley. How's it doing today?

Keeper: I'm doing fine. I've got a clipboard. Only one, chief. It knocked out a couple of Gunsmokes and got a pretty good start on a Bonanza before 10 o'clock this morning, but then it bogged down. It just seemed to lose interest.

Supervisor: What did you do then?

Keeper: I went in and tried to encourage it. I gave it some ideas.

Supervisor: How did it react?

Keeper: It wrote me a message saying it was bored with westerns, all westerns. It asked for a transfer to the Danny Thomas Show or Hazel.

Supervisor: That is ridiculous. We have good machines writing situation comedies already.

Keeper: I told it that, I suggested as politely as I could not wanting to hurt its feelings, that it quit bellyaching and get back to work.

Supervisor: Did it get back to work?

Keeper: No. It dimmed its lights, quit whirring and didn't do anything. It said go away. It was on its coffee break.

Supervisor: What, if anything, did the confounded thing do between its coffee break and its lunch hour?

Keeper: For one thing, it doodled. It worked a bunch of silly problems in astrophysics and threw them away. After that it wrote a skit for the office party, making fun of us, I suspect, and then it wrote a long memo to me complaining about the fluorescent lighting in its office.

Supervisor: Has it hit a tap of useful work since lunch, Murkley? Tell me, has it?

Keeper: Well, it did finish Bonanza script, but the plot sounds strange to me—Hoss Cartwright turning to art, falling under the spell of the Impressionists, and going off to apprentice himself to van Gogh.

Supervisor: Preposterous! What's it doing in there now?

Keeper: I suppose it's doing what it does every afternoon—it reads the Great Books to itself, all of them, every seven minutes, over and over again.

Supervisor: Frankly, Murkley, I've had about all I can take from this machine. I'm sick and tired of its superior attitude, its intellectual pretences, its eternal lollygagging, and its mockery of us all. That machine is a malcontent. Let's face it—they all are.

Keeper: They think too much, chief, that's the trouble with them.

Stars London-Bound

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—London will be jumping soon with stars and productions. Judy Garland will be there in a week or so for the I Could Go on Singing premiere. Deborah Kerr is expected for The Chalk Garden, and isn't this Ross Hunter's first production abroad? Joe Levine will be starting his Zulu epic with Stanley Baker and Terence Stamp in London. And Peter Sellers and Dirk Bogarde are doing their bomb picture... and Marion Dorn has been in London and my informant assures me she will marry R. J. Wagner when his divorce from Natalie Wood is final in April.

Laurence Harvey kept his sense of humor when he heard that his former leading lady, Capucine, said of him, "If he were offered Camille he'd put on a wig and play the girl." "It's a great part" Larry conceded.

Dress designer Marista is prouder of her Peppermint West success than of all her pretty dresses. And it really is the place to go. In one week, these top stars were twirling and boogieing—Ava Gardner with Hugh O'Brian, George Hamilton with Diane Melville, Gardner McKay with Sharron Thomas, Natalie Wood with Warren Beatty, Pamela Mason and Ed Fitzgerald, Zsa Zsa Gabor, Linda Christian and Bo Belinsky.

Peter O'Toole, complete with straight black hair—his own is curly—and bushy beard, is a hit in London's Beal. The first play written by Brecht in 1918 when he was 20. The run will be limited because of Peter's upcoming movie commitments.

Ex-fighter Muffy Callahan who helped put some muscles on Elvis Presley, has an acting role with Dean Martin and Geraldine Page in Toys in the Attic.

RUDOLF FLESCH Reviews Surprise Book of Year

Anti-Sex Novel Latest Twist

Now I've seen everything. Someone has just written an anti-sex novel.

The author's name is Margery Sharp (a well-known supplier of ladies' lending-library novels) and the title of the book is Martha in Paris (Little, Brown).

This is a novel about a young girl totally devoid of sex appeal. She's fat, she eats like a horse, she never smiles and lacks any and all of the social graces. Her face looks like a dumpling, her hair is straight as an arrow, her figure is cylindrical and she pays no attention whatever to clothes.

The moon shines over the Luxembourg Gardens, they kiss and kiss again and everything ends in a rosy glow.

But this is Martha in Paris, our anti-sex novel, and the actual plot is quite different. Martha does meet a young man but, unexpectedly, takes no interest in him whatsoever. Her appearance remains exactly what it was before—elephantine, unattractive. "Mother Bunch."

The young man isn't really interested in Martha either but somehow, by a string of accidents, a brief sort of affair develops between them. Martha quite casually loses her virginity but finds sex rather uninteresting.

Afterwards the young man pursues her for a while, but she's bored with him and tells him nothing doing. So he gives up. They go their different ways and Martha dismisses the episode from her mind.

There's more to the plot, of course, but essentially that's about all you get. The moral of the tale seems to be that sex is just an unnecessary bother and shouldn't be allowed to interfere with more important matters, such as learning how to paint. Anyway, the whole sexual thing is greatly overrated.

So there you have it—the surprise novel of the year. What the lending-library ladies will say to all this remains to be seen.

man, falls instantly in love and, by the well-known magic of Paris in the springtime, is transformed.

She goes on a diet and sheds 50 pounds, she learns to smile, she fixes her hair, makes up her face, buys some nice clothes and— presto! —the young man discovers that Martha is the loveliest girl he's ever seen.

The moon shines over the Luxembourg Gardens, they kiss and kiss again and everything ends in a rosy glow.

But this is Martha in Paris, our anti-sex novel, and the actual plot is quite different. Martha does meet a young man but, unexpectedly, takes no interest in him whatsoever. Her appearance remains exactly what it was before—elephantine, unattractive. "Mother Bunch."

Best Men Following Expansion Plans Into Limbo at UBC?

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Province quotes an unnamed "high university official" today as saying a $1,800,000 cut in the University of B.C.'s 1963 budget not only wrecks hope of UBC expansion this year, but poses a threat of loss of some of the university's best professors.

The paper says it has learned the university's board of governors is planning to press the province to take a second look at the university budget.

University officials are quoted as saying the restricted budget makes it virtually impossible to operate efficiently next year.

The paper says a considerable number of new staff members hired in 1962 received only nine months' salary from the 1962 budget. Their full 12 months' salary would eat up much of the $1,800,000 increase in the budget agreed to by the province.

One official is quoted as saying:

"One of our greatest problems, and it is getting more critical, is that our best professors are being attracted to other colleges, some of them much smaller than UBC, which pay better salaries."

The paper says some members of the university staff fear that, unless the provincial grant is raised, the university will be forced to hold departmental budgets to the present level, producing a wage freeze.

Fulton Picks Mentor

KAMLOOPS (CP)—Dr. C. J. M. Willoughby, 68-year-old physician who launched David Fulton on a distinguished political career 30 years ago, was nominated Wednesday night to take over his protégé's riding. He was nominated by Mr. Fulton to contest Kamloops for the Conservatives.

Mr. Fulton was launched on his political career when Dr. Willoughby nominated him at a similar meeting here 30 years ago.

City Riding Jaycees May Battle

Two Victoria Jaycees, both in the real estate business, will be fighting each other in the April 8 election if Peter Brown wins the Social Credit nomination in the Victoria riding.

Mr. Brown, a Jaycee for about 12 years and sales manager of a Victoria real estate firm which his grandfather started in 1901, tossed his hat into the Soerred ring yesterday.

CHARMAN EARLIER

Jaycee president Eric Charman, also in the real estate business, won the Progressive Conservative nomination Tuesday.

Mr. Brown was the second man to announce his aspirations as Soerred banner carrier. First to enter the race was Victoria author James Audain, whose third book, My Borrowed Life, now is being published in Victoria.

Mr. Audain, Soerred candidate in the last election, said Tuesday he will be in the running for the nomination. Ald. Millard Mooney has also been considered a possible nominee and MLA J. Donald Smith has said he was seriously considering taking the plunge into federal politics.

Elsewhere on the election scene:

● Esquimalt-Saanich returning officer John Davies said a preliminary count showed 44,335 names on the voters' list, prior to revision, an increase of 1,322 voters from the 43,013 persons on the list after revision last year.

● New Democratic Party candidate John Windsor has challenged other candidates in Esquimalt-Saanich to a debate on the question of whether Canada should acquire nuclear weapons.

● W. A. "Bill" Scott, a member of the executive of the NDP's Victoria riding, charged the NDP provincial executive with "setting themselves up as little Hitlers, Caesars and Mussolinis by denying the people of Victoria the freedom to choose their candidates."

Mr. Scott said his name was entered by another party member as a candidate for the NDP nomination but it was stricken from the list by the NDP executive in Vancouver.

"They have robbed our membership of the right to vote for or against a person, the most precious thing of all. The last thing I wanted is to go to Ottawa, but this is a question of principle and I will not be a servant to vested authority," said the angry Victorian.

In addition, some very impressive pictures were created in the throne room scenes.

Color, costumes and settings were well managed although there were occasional difficulties in the matter of positioning.

The director was Larry Johns with the orchestra conducted by Marie Milburn and the chorus by Charlotte Kay. Pam Harbord is the student director with Val Lindholm holding the book.

The first night is seldom the easiest so Snow White will doubtless become even better as the run progresses. The play goes on again tonight, Friday and Saturday, at 8 p.m.

Catacombs Beat Progress

ROME (UPI)—Authorities have put a halt to work by a construction team that was digging up third-century Christian tombs with a steam shovel to put in the foundations of two apartment dwellings.

The "catacombs" were those named after St. Hippolytus, a third-century martyr who died in 236.

Accepted in Full

Premier Bennett says his government has completely accepted the Macdonald report on education.

That was his reply in the legislature Wednesday to charges by Liberal leader Ray Perrault that early government expressions of sympathy toward the recommendations sounded like "wrestling."

The government accepts the Macdonald report and will put into effect all of it as soon as possible," the premier replied.

Quake Strikes

QUITO, Ecuador (AP)—One person was injured and many houses damaged in an earthquake which shook central Ecuador and the big port city of Guayaquil Tuesday night.

"We will always give money for education — more every year," Premier Bennett shouted back.

"We intend to play an important part in this great movement in education," he continued.

Legislation would be brought in this session to establish "three" universities in B.C. and there would be amendments to the School Act to allow the setting up of junior colleges, the premier said.

Jaycees Shelve Atom Issue

Consideration of a motion calling for a non-nuclear Canada has been postponed by the Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce until after the April 8 federal election.

After Jaycee director Al Wilson introduced the proposal from the floor at last night's general meeting, terming it "strictly non-partisan," a motion was made from the floor for consideration to be postponed to the first meeting in May.

Mr. Wilson proposed a change from that date to April 10, and the altered motion was carried. There was no discussion of the postponement, but April 10 is two days after the election.

NON-PARTISAN

Earlier Mr. Wilson had said, "I feel Jaycees must be non-partisan, and I know there's an election coming."

"But I don't feel for a moment we should shy away from political issues if we approach them in a non-partisan manner."

The motion, approved for general consideration at a recent Jaycee directors' meeting, called on Canada to "renounce completely, as soon as possible, all nuclear weapons within the Western alliance."

REQUEST REJECTED

Meanwhile, the directors of the Junior Chamber were understood to have rejected a request by Victoria Jaycee president Eric Charman to be granted leave-of-absence during his campaign as Conservative nominee in Victoria in the federal election.

They were understood to have rejected the request on the grounds Mr. Charman has the right to ask vice-presidents to fill in for him anyway.

Revival Tale Denied By Soviet Scientist

Swedish Sister Ships May Open Season

MONTREAL (UPI) — An official of the Swedish Laritzen Line, owners of the "Dan" fleet of general cargo freighters, said two of its vessels would leave Trois Rivières today and were expected to be the first ships into the port of Montreal for the 1963 shipping season.

Earlier reports said the 5,000-ton Helga Dan and the 4,000-ton Brita Dan, would not attempt to navigate the ice-clogged St. Lawrence beyond Trois Rivières.

More than 500 attended ball and saw—and ate—lavish display of delicacies donated by Victoria-area restaurants and chefs.

MOSCOW (UPI)—A Soviet professor, whose name was linked to a claim that 5,000-year-old lizard-like tritons had been brought back to life in Siberia, said Wednesday the story was "pure fantasy."

"The author of this tale should be punished," said Prof. Lev Losino-Losinsky, head of the cosmic biology laboratory at Leningrad's Institute of Cytology.

WRITER WARNED

Losino-Losinsky, said in a telephone interview he had warned the writer of the revived lizard tale ahead of time not to portray scientific fantasy as fact.

The claim that a four-inch long amphibious salamander known as a triton had been revived after being frozen 5,000 years in Siberian soil was broadcast Tuesday by Moscow radio.

It triggered a storm of phone calls from correspondents here and abroad seeking more details.

EYEBROWN UP

Overseas a host of scientific eyebrows were raised when the report was given wide circulation.

In New York, Dr. Charles M. Bogart of the American Museum of Natural History, attributed the reports to "some sloppy scientific observation."

FROM MAGAZINE

Moscow radio reporters finally admitted they had taken the story from a three-month-old issue of the Leningrad magazine Neva.

A Neva article written by Baldyuh claimed that one triton found frozen in Siberia by geologists had returned to life when thawed out in a warm room and had lived for three weeks. It said another revived triton had lived a whole summer.

UNSUCCESSFUL

The Neva article linked the stories to the work of Prof. Losino-Losinsky who has done considerable experimenting with the problem of keeping creatures alive by deep freezing.

Losino-Losinsky said none of his experiments had been successful.

Canadian Help

Aid to Asia Up

OTTAWA (CP)—There are indications Canada will increase its contributions to the Colombo Plan in the fiscal year starting April 1, at least to the extent of restoring the $2,500,000 cut imposed in last year's economy program.

Informed sources look for an increase no matter which political party wins the April 8 federal election.

Allocation for the current fiscal year, ending March 31, was originally set at $50,000,000 but was reduced to $41,500,000 in last June's austerity measures.

Although it was never officially announced, the cut was understood to have taken the form largely of reduced flour and wheat shipments to countries of Southeast Asia.

It is understood the government's 1963-64 spending estimates, being prepared for presentation to Parliament when the Diefenbaker government fell Feb. 5, would have included provision for the increased outlay.

Informants said restoration of appropriations could be considered a prerequisite to the "greater designs" for assistance to underdeveloped nations of the Commonwealth, which Prime Minister Diefenbaker advocated Monday in London.

Leaders of all three opposition parties are on record saying aid to the underdeveloped countries should be increased.

CRITICAL

They have repeatedly criticized the government for this year's cut, saying that domestic budgetary problems should not have been allowed to impinge on Canada's performance in the foreign aid field.

The Colombo Plan has been accounting for 75 to 80 per cent of Canadian appropriations for foreign aid.

Opposites Within B.C. Amaze Labor Official

PORTLAND (AP)—A Canadian labor official said Wednesday he was amazed at how the extreme right and extreme left are able to operate in British Columbia.

Speaking to an International Woodworkers of America convention here, Jack Mackenzie of Vancouver, first vice-president of the western Canada IWA regional council, said the province's labor laws were restrictive.

Discussing the attitude of some wood products industry operators on import tariffs, Mackenzie said "It is very amusing to me to hear the same employer argue against himself across an imaginary line—the U.S.-Canada border."

"I feel strongly that the real motivation in this campaign is the attempt by a group of hungry operators who want to get in, out and get out."

Mr. Mackenzie had no im-

'Speculation'

Satellite Forecast Refused

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Canadian-born Dr. Joseph V. Charyk, chosen by President Kennedy to be president of the new Communications Satellite Corporation, said Wednesday it would be "sheer speculation" to predict when a space communications network might begin operation.

"The first major job will be to make decisions as to the type of system that will be established," Charyk, currently undersecretary of the air force, said in an interview.

'SPECULATION'

"It would be sheer speculation at this point" to estimate how long it might take to put a network of transistorized switchboards in orbit, he said. Charyk, a native of Canada, came to the United States in 1942, shortly after graduating from the University of Alberta and became a U.S. citizen in 1948.

LARGE STAKE

The 42-year-old scientist-executive said Canada had a large stake in the success of satellite communications.

"After all, the linking of the North American continent with Europe and Asia is one of the aims," he said.

Big Load Faces Manitoba

WINNIPEG (CP)—The first session of the 27th Manitoba legislature, opening Wednesday, faces a heavy work load in an unusually short time to get it done.

The session, normally two weeks old at this time, is expected to conclude about May 1 when rural members who make up two-thirds of the 57-seat house return home for seeding operations.

SIX PHASES

Premier Duff Roblin's Progressive Conservative government may aim at implementing a six-phase economic development program outlined during the Dec. 14 provincial election campaign.

Pre-session reports say the program's key plank will be the establishment of a consultative board, aided by public and private sectors of the economy, to set up economic targets for the province.

STILL SECRET

A government source says the still-secret report of the committee on Manitoba's economic future is almost certain to be tabled at the session.

The committee of businessmen and community leaders was charged last year with the responsibility of finding ways to provide 40,000 new jobs by 1970.

Planned legislation could also include establishment of a research council, a fund to help finance industrial diversification, an export corporation to help firms sell their products abroad and more aids to small business.

MORE CREDIT

Agricultural legislation could include the extension of more credit for the cattle industry as part of a far-reaching program to stimulate agriculture.

Other legislative possibilities include plans for the development of hydro power on the Nelson River and a program of human betterment including student loan funds and community recreation grants.

Saskatchewan Car Rates To Increase

REGINA (CP)—The average Saskatchewan car owner soon will be paying about 10 per cent more for the insurance he gets under the government's compulsory automobile insurance plan.

At the same time he will be able to get increased benefits.

The increased rates and benefits were announced in the provincial legislature by Attorney-General R. A. Walker.

Yearly premium for a person owning a new car has been about $40 a year and will go up to about $44 a year May 1. Premiums for 1956 cars have been about $25 a year and will go up to about $28.

Benefits under the act include up to $10,000 for dependants of a person killed in a car crash regardless of fault, property damage insurance of up to $5,000 and public liability insurance.

U.S. Buys U.K. Brains

LONDON (Reuters) — The United States is conducting systematic recruiting drive for British scientists, sending talent scouts to "buy British brains," Science Minister Lord Hailsham said Wednesday.

The House of Lords on recent reports about the number of British scientists emigrating to the U.S.

The Royal Society, Britain's leading scientific body, said last week about 60 British doctors of philosophy go to the U.S. to stay each year.

If temporary emigrants were included, the number soared to at least 280—or 22 per cent of the annual British output.

Hailsham said he would give the facts "quite brutally," adding:

"We are in the presence of a recruiting drive, systematically and deliberately undertaken by American universities and, to a lesser extent, the American government, often initiated by talent scouts specially sent over here to buy British brains."

Tribal Chief Killed

ENGCOBO, South Africa (Reuters)—African tribal headman Jonginamba Delwe was killed Tuesday night as he dashed from his burning hut in the Transkei, police said Wednesday.

His death came only two weeks after he was attacked by angry tribesmen in the Transkei district which is due to become South Africa's first bantustan—an internally self-governing African state.

The circumstances surrounding his death were not immediately clear. Police said his hut was set on fire but it was not immediately known whether he died from burns or other causes.

Grits 'Unfit'
To Govern

RED DEER, Alta. (UPI)—Social Credit leader Robert Thompson said Wednesday the Liberal party was "not fit to govern the country."

Speaking at his nominating convention, he directed his attack against the Liberals as the only main opposition to Social Credit to form the next government.

All the Liberal party proved in the last Parliament was that it was "prepared to wreck Parliament and interrupt the government of the country any time it saw fit for the sake of party advantage," Mr. Thompson said.

"People like that are not fit to govern."

He said, that whether a minority or majority government is elected April 8, "Social Credit pledges itself to act responsibly and work for good and stable government in Canada."

CHANCE FOR WEST

"You in the west have a chance to join in and clean out for evermore the bumbling old-line politicians in Ottawa."

In his speech, on the theme "anything the Liberals can do we can do better," Mr. Thompson said his party could offer the country not one leader but two—he and Beryl Quebec deputy Real Casquette.

AS A TEAM

"We can provide two men of experience in business and government still in the prime of life, standing together as a team, Canadians both, one of the English language and one of the French."

He said John Diefenbaker had every opportunity to present a "positive and constructive program for the development of Canada," but instead "wasted his time on trivialities."

'Anyone
Informed'

WINNIPEG (CP)—Defence Minister Gordon Churchill said Wednesday he "wouldn't mind" taking part in a public debate with Liberal defence critic Paul Hellyer on Canada's defence policy.

However, he would prefer "a better informed" person than Mr. Hellyer.

The latter issued the challenge Tuesday night at a Liberal nominating convention in Winnipeg South Centre.

Mr. Churchill said Mr. Hellyer's speech contained "a great many inaccuracies."

Jobs Come First

Unpleasant Rulings
Seen by Pearson

MONCTON (CP)—Liberal Leader Pearson said Wednesday the Liberals will have to take some unpleasant decisions after the April 8 federal election to clean up "the mess" left by the Conservative government.

"We will have to get things in order, to clean up the mess we are going to inherit," he told an early afternoon luncheon before party workers here.

DESPITE SURGE

"It's going to be a difficult thing to do."

He said the Canadian Tax Foundation is estimating that in the coming year, despite the economic surge claimed by the Progressive Conservatives, the federal government's deficit will be $900,000,000.

"We'll have to take decisions and some of them won't be very pleasant ones. But a government that is worth its salt is not afraid to take unpleasant decisions if it has to."

NOT A NICKEL

He said that after the April 8 election he does not think a nickel should be spent that is not directed toward stimulating the economy and production to provide jobs.

He said that when income is up and men at work then "we can do more for people" in the way of social security.

PEARSON FIRST

Mr. Pearson said the first priority for social security measures is a contributory old age pension plan. Next came a national health insurance plan to be worked out in co-operation with the provinces and with the approval and co-operation of the medical profession.

John D Heading
For Home Riding

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker was to make a midnight departure Wednesday night on his 5½-week election campaign tour, starting in low key and low temperatures.

On a train bound for Winnipeg and his home constituency of Prince Albert in Saskatchewan, Mr. Diefenbaker will whistletop today through Northern Ontario communities of Capreol, Foleyet, Hornepayne, Lundac and Nakina.

OFFER MONDAY

The Progressive Conservative leader, travelling aboard his private railway car with a small corps of speech-writers and research assistants, will not open his campaign officially until Monday evening at a rally in Winnipeg.

Mr. Diefenbaker, who returned Tuesday from being made a freeman of the City of London, spent Wednesday at his residence gathering campaign material while his staff loaded typewriters and files aboard the private car and another hired by the Conservatives for their use.

MAIN DATES

A third car has been earmarked for reporters. All will be hitched to the regular CNR continental train.

On this first leg of the prime minister's April 8 election tour, taking him through three provinces in six days, his major speaking engagements will be Saturday evening in the Strand Theatre, Prince Albert, for his own personal nomination meeting, and at the Civic Auditorium in Winnipeg Monday.

Two Chinese-Canadians
Vancouver CandidatesFarm Help
NDP Pledge

BEAUSEJOUR, Man. (CP)—T. C. Douglas, New Democratic Party leader, said Wednesday night an NDP government might take over "great processing and packaging monopolies" and give them to the farmer.

He told a farm audience packed into the town hall that the farmers must be allowed to control the handling of their own products.

Mr. Douglas said the government would take over the industries only "if necessary."

VANCOUVER (CP)—At least two of Vancouver's five Conservative candidates in the April 8 federal election will be Chinese-Canadians.

Mrs. Gladys Chong was picked Tuesday night as PC candidate in Vancouver East and Douglas Jung, Canada's first member of parliament of Chinese extraction, was nominated earlier to run in Vancouver Centre.

Mrs. Chong is the first Chinese-Canadian woman to run in a federal election campaign.

She told the nominating convention the Progressive Conservative party is the only political organization to endorse Orientals.

Canada
'Never Pledged'

WINNIPEG (CP) — External Affairs Minister Howard Green said Wednesday Canada had never committed itself to accepting nuclear arms for its forces in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

He told a press conference that Liberal claims about such a commitment were false. Mr. Green, who is addressing a Progressive Conservative nominating convention, said, "We happen to be the government."

Party President

High Tory

Favors

Warheads

MONTREAL (CP) — Egan Chambers, national president of the Progressive Conservative Association, said, Wednesday night Canada's Bomarc missiles and Voodoo interceptors should be armed with nuclear warheads.

He made the statement in a speech accepting the Conservative party nomination to contest Montreal St. Lawrence-St. George riding in the April 8 federal election.

MOST EFFICIENT

"It is my belief," he said, "that as long as the Canadian chiefs of staff tell the government that Russia retains a sufficient force of long-range bombers to pose a real threat to North America, our interceptors—the Bomarc and Voodoo aircraft—should be armed in the most efficient manner possible, which means with nuclear weapons."

CAN'T START WAR

Mr. Chambers said neither the Bomarc nor the Voodoo "has the capability of starting a war."

Bomarc, for example, could not be launched until an attacking force had flown over 1,000 miles of northern Canada.

"I want to reiterate that I do support the policies of the Conservative party although there are some of them that I would change or expand upon."

Drought Threat
Panics Swedes

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Panicky crowds of Swedes—a traditionally thirsty lot—stormed the state liquor stores Wednesday.

The foremen at the state liquor monopoly went on strike over vacation time.

Rumors circulated that the more popular types of drink—vodka, whisky, brandy and domestic beer—will be exhausted in a few days.

French Warships
Head for Brazil

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI)—Brazilian Navy Minister Pedro Paulo Suzano said last night four French warships are en route to Brazilian waters and "we will repel these ships."

The ship movements were the latest development in the "lobster war" between Brazil and France.

Suzano said the Brazilian navy intercepted French radio messages which reported that the offshore carrier Clemenceau, the cruiser De Gaulle and two destroyers, Tatu and Casard, are "halfway between France and Brazil."

France and Brazil have been heading for a naval showdown due to Brazilian harassment of French lobster boats.

Animal Vote Baffles Nikita

MOSCOW (Reuters)—Premier Khrushchev Wednesday described the U.S. political system as a choice between "a donkey and an elephant."

"I do not know which of these two animals I would prefer myself," he told a cheering audience of 6,000 Soviet voters at the Kremlin in a "campaign meeting" before Sunday's Soviet elections.

The donkey is the symbol of

Khrushchev is a candidate for re-election to the Supreme Soviet parliament from the Kalinin electoral district of Moscow.

During his two visits to the United States, Khrushchev told the voters, he took the opportunity to watch television during a U.S. election campaign.

He told about American voters being driven "crazy" by the 24-hour-a-day noise of speeches trying to persuade them to vote "for a donkey or an elephant."

Khrushchev said politicians in bourgeois countries were mostly "capitalists, gungling landholders or their stooges."

NDP STEPS UP BARRAGE

PREMIER BENNETT

It's Up
—Fulton

VERNON (CP) — Works Minister Fulton says the federal government, while "fully interested," is going to leave it up to B.C.'s Social Credit government to investigate charges leveled in the legislature in connection with a Trans-Canada Highway project.

In an interview, Mr. Fulton said Wednesday:

"Federal money was involved in this work and naturally the federal government is vitally interested in any charges such as these. The federal government does not plan to initiate any investigation because I am sure provincial authorities will see to it a full and conclusive investigation is made."

Mr. Fulton has been named B.C. leader of the Progressive Conservative party and will be leaving the federal cabinet.

He said he plans to return to his Ottawa office Thursday and will check the contracts and payments connected with the charges.

Completed
Hearings Promised

A legislative committee will be kept sitting as long as necessary to finish its hearings into charges of large-scale misuse of funds in the B.C. highways department—even after prorogation.

That, Premier Bennett told the legislature Wednesday, is the government's position.

It will stay that way, he said, despite opposition demands that sworn statements and documents tabled in the legislature Tuesday should be turned over immediately to the RCMP for investigation.

His reply came after renewed demands by Alan Macfarlane (Lib.-Oak Bay) for an immediate police probe of the charges made by Gordon Dowding (NDP—Burnaby).

The charges "alleged misconduct of the most serious kind," Mr. Macfarlane said, and completed RCMP reports should go to Attorney-General Bonner and to the minister of justice in Ottawa, because both provincial and federal funds were involved.

The reports might show that the allegations were well founded and "might involve the resignation of the minister of highways" or that they were unfounded and all persons named would be cleared of any responsibility, he said.

It was time "for immediate action," Mr. Macfarlane said, and he did not want to see the charges handled by the standing committee on public accounts. They could start an investigation and the House could end its session and that would be the end of it, he suggested.

Evidence of Misuse
'Still Being Found'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Montana attorney E. W. Cross said he is continually unearthing evidence in an alleged misuse of B.C. department of highways funds.

Mr. Cross is representing Dick Holzworth of Helena, Mont., who signed an affidavit tabled in the provincial legislature Tuesday alleging fabrication and padding of highway project estimates totaling $135,000.

WILLING TO SPEAK

Mr. Cross said in a telephone interview from Helena that he and his client, president of Union Contractors Limited, would be willing to come to B.C. to testify at any inquiry into the case.

The lawyer said that $135,000 went to L. and M. Logging company from the altering of work sheets for work that was later done by Union on a stretch of highway in the Revelstoke area.

He said Holzworth, 48, lost $200,000 because of "graft" and is fighting to get it back. Holzworth had invested the

Bennett Promises
HearingsNew Affidavits

By DON MATHESON

More documents, more charges of alleged Social Credit misuse of public office cracked in the legislature Wednesday as the New Democratic Party continued a session-long attack.

James Rhodes (NDP—Delta) stepped up to the firing line to wind up the budget debate for the opposition.

Before he finished he had:

● Tabled two sworn affidavits alleging conflict of private with public interest by PGE railway vice-president Einar Gunderson;

● Described a series of construction companies as "a spider web" whose main qualifications appeared to him that they were either connected with defeated Social Credit candidates or had personal connections with Highways Minister P. A. Gagliardi, and,

● Said the opposition will move before the session is over to have the government appoint a royal commission to inquire into how all political parties in B.C. obtain campaign funds.

Mr. Rhodes read in full two long sworn statements from Douglas Small of Eagle Harbor, one-time employee of W. L. Laird Distributors Ltd., and public accountant Ludger Robineau of Williams Lake, who once checked the Laird company's accounts with the PGE.

After tabling them, he said the basic conclusions to be drawn from the affidavits were:

● "Gunderson's private firm is involved in the affairs of a company doing business with the PGE."

● "Gunderson as vice-president of the PGE has extended special favors to W. L. Laird Distributors Ltd."

● "The company was depriving the railway of proper revenues."

● "The conflict of interest by Gunderson was harmful to a crown company and is untenable."

(Mr. Gunderson is a partner in the accounting firm of Gunderson, Stokes, Walton and Co.)

"MUST GO!"

A week earlier, the legislature heard the call, "Mr. Gunderson must go, from Alex Macdonald (NDP—Vancouver East) because he was a director of crown agencies and also said to be a collector of Social Credit campaign funds."

Tuesday, documents claiming large-scale misuse of B.C. highways department funds, including sums in the $100,000 range, were filed in the House.

COMPLAINTS

Early in his speech, Mr. Rhodes referred to the charges and then said Mr. Gagliardi had complained "bitterly" about order-paper questions about the sums paid to a certain list of companies for government work.

He listed Atlas Construction Co., Casco Tire Co., Western Sand and Gravel Ltd., all of Kamloops, and seven other companies. The order-paper answers showed they received about $2,200,000 during 1962.

"SPIDER WEB"

"The companies mentioned in the questions," Mr. Rhodes said, "appear to be part of a large spider—a spider web of companies whose main qualifications appear to be either defeated Social Credit candidates or their personal connections with the minister."

One group of interlocking companies had as a director a disbarred lawyer who had been sentenced to two years in prison for fraud, he said.

"PUBLIC PAID"

With "no construction experience, no financial backing," the company had fallen down on a major project and "the public paid through the nose for this blatant patronage which went to these inefficient political hangers."

All the companies "over the years, have received literally

Anti-Climax
Ultimatum
On Gas Made Good

Social Credit maverick Cyril Shefford's ultimatum to the government on gasoline prices was made good last night hours before its deadline—but it came as an anti-climax.

At the close of last night's sitting he filed a notice of motion for next Friday calling on the government to "give consideration to the appointment of a royal commission to study all phases of petroleum marketing practices in the province and to make recommendations thereon."

PANICKING LIKELY

It is in the kind of resolution which can be supported without any embarrassing split in Social Credit ranks and undoubtedly would be passed. Key words on the resolution are "give consideration."

Had it called on the government to appoint a royal commission a major split could have taken place.

SUPPORT

More than half a dozen Social Credit members had already indicated support of Shefford's plan and so had NDP and Liberal members.

Speaking during the three speech debate earlier in the session Mr. Shefford gave all companies and the government until today to take action.

MAY NOT BE

But last night there was even some question of whether the resolution could come up Friday.

If it has to take its turn among some 22 other resolutions now before the House it may not come up before the end of the session.

MARGARET PETERSON

By TED SHACKLEFORD

Renowned Victoria artist Margaret Peterson is excitedly making plans for a 12-month tour of Europe and Central America to study great temples under a $4,000 Canada Council grant.

She plans to return with ideas for the incorporation of mosaic and mural art in buildings for the new Victoria University at Gordon Head.

"I'm walking on air," Miss Peterson said last night. "I'll be leaving in about 10 weeks for Europe to study temples with the emphasis on early Romanesque and the art of the Middle Ages."

"I expect to be gone for a year, I have a very detailed schedule I must fill. It is a tremendously complicated and ambitious undertaking and very thrilling, too."

"If I live very judiciously I might be able to live for 15 months on the grant."

Miss Peterson's husband, author Howard O'Hagan, busy on a collection of short stories to be published in the fall, will remain in Victoria for the present.

"I hope to meet my husband in Central America as soon as I have finished my work in Europe. I am going to see Mayan temples and University City in Mexico. Howard speaks fluent Spanish."

University City is world famous for its murals and mosaic walls on buildings.

A second Canada Council award was given to a Victoria resident — Prof. Anthony Emery, of Victoria University, who was given a $4,300 grant.

He will leave at the end of the university term for a one-year study tour of Canada, the United States and Europe.

Prof. Emery came to Victoria in 1953 and taught in local schools before continuing his studies. He was appointed assistant professor of history and English at Victoria University in 1957.

Hospital Loses Money

Waiting For Victoria

PORT ALBERNI — West Coast General Hospital board chairman W. J. C. Jones says little can be done locally to speed action on establishing a hospital district and starting an expansion program.

He was questioned after reporting recent communications had shown the board's request for approval in principle of the plan is still under study by the B.C. Hospital Insurance Service.

NURSING HOME

Plans are to have the hospital district include rural areas along with the twin cities, complete the top floor of the hospital building and construct a nursing home adjacent to the main building.

Mr. Jones said there is a shortage of space, particularly in the children's ward, and it is hoped to transfer the ward to the upper floor.

Administrator Harvey Taylor said average occupancy for the year had been 75 per cent.

"When occupancy is consistently 80 per cent, a hospital is regarded as overcrowded."

Quick Start For Centre

COURTENAY — John Gresham, president of Ryan Road Development Co., said Wednesday the development will be started immediately.

Plans call for a supermarket, stores and 250 homes within a half-mile of RCAF Station, to be built by Peterson Construction.

The three and four-bedroom units will rent for less than $80 a month, it has been reported.

Death Case Remanded

VANCOUVER — Stephen Mitchell, 21, charged with capital murder in the death of his brother, George Harvey, 22, of Shell Beach Indian reserve near Ladysmith, was remanded Wednesday to March 6. He is being held in Oakalla prison.

Mitchell was found dead Feb. 17, shot twice in the head and once through the chest.

Project List Laid Down

PORT ALBERNI — B.C. Hospital Insurance Service has been asked to approve completion of the top floor of West Coast General Hospital, an extension to the laundry and other services, and construction of a 30 to 40-bed nursing home, president W. J. C. Jones of the hospital society told the annual meeting Tuesday.

DEFINITE PLANS

He said receipt of the department's approval will make it possible to proceed with formation of a hospital district and make definite plans for financing and planning the expansion.

He said it is likely the hospital district will include other areas as well as those within the school district.

Administrator Harvey Taylor said adult and children admittance to hospital during the year was down by 31 from the previous year to 4,453.

There was an increase of 31 in births, to 717.

He reported there was an increase of 16 major operations to 307, while there were 171 fewer minor operations than in the previous year.

Future Command

Checking over Princess of Nanaimo Wednesday are Chief Engineer Walter Miller, left, and Chief Officer William Goodwin. Two men will be passengers on ship's 19-day voyage to Halifax via Panama Canal which starts today but will assume command when it begins its run between St. John, N.B., and Digby, N.S. — (Ryan Bros.)

PORT ALBERNI — A deficit of $1,727 for West Coast General Hospital in 1962 was reported by finance committee chairman Howard McLean at the hospital society's annual meeting, compared to a $2,934 surplus the year before.

Mr. McLean said the figure had been arrived at following year-end adjustments by BCHIS but will be subject to the hospital insurance services' audit sometime in 1963.

ONE ELECTED

Robert Scofield, Port Alberni lawyer, was elected to the board while five other board members were re-elected. He represents the local branch of the Canadian Mental Health Association.

Re-elected were Maurice Landry, IWA; A. T. Turner, Legion branch 55; Mr. McLean, Barclay Lodge, AF & AM; William Ginniver, Legion branch 369.

TREBETT DECLINES

James Trebett, a member for 14 years, declined nomination.

Approval was given to the appointments of Ald. William Goddard, Port Alberni council; Ald. C. M. Blair, Alberni council; Mrs. Olive Begg, Women's auxiliary; M. E. B. McVicar, provincial government; E. G. Siroyas, lumber industry.

Land Now Available For Old Chinatown

COURTENAY — Canadian Colliers is willing to make up to 10 acres of land available for the restoration of Chinatown in Cumberland.

The Chinatown restoration committee learned the company's land, on which Chinatown stands, is available, but whether it is for sale or lease was not disclosed.

THREE MORE

A little under seven acres is currently involved, but another three might be required for parking and other facilities.

C. A. Cousins, committee chairman, says Chinatown, a residential area for workers when the mines were flourishing in Cumberland, has as much if not more potential as an historical site as Barkerville.

The committee will meet soon to discuss the next step in the development planning.

Surplus Grows

DUNCAN — The North Cowichan council had good news for taxpayers — it closed its year with a surplus of $78,021 compared with a $55,000 surplus in 1961. The tax levy exceeded $1,000,000 for the first time in the district's 90-year history.

Insecure premises continue to plague city police despite continued requests for co-operation of business firms.

Police found the following places insecure early yesterday morning: Speedy Auto Wash, 1011 Fort; Benny's Grill, 1020 Blanshard; Black Ball Transport Inc., 816 Wharf; New Method Laundry, 417 North Park.

Civil defence co-ordinator in Victoria for the past five years, Commodore V. S. Godfrey last night tendered his resignation on the eve of a projected reorganization of the service.

Addressed to Mayor R. B. Wilson, his resignation will be received at city hall this morning.

"I am 65, you know, and I think it is time I played a little golf and did some fishing," Commodore Godfrey said last night.

'YOUNGER MAN'

"I think a younger man would be able to get more results by running around a bit more."

Appointed co-ordinator when the four Greater Victoria municipalities were members of the one, central civil defence organization, Commodore Godfrey has seen Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt drop out to form their own organizations.

Withdrawal of Esquimalt recently has left the city with the same staff and offices that were used when all municipalities belonged.

NOT ENOUGH

"I don't think there is enough for me to do now as the other municipalities have been encouraged to set up their own organizations by provincial government policy," Commodore Godfrey explained.

"I expect my resignation to take effect at the end of March when the new budget will be decided. I felt it would be more convenient all round to resign now."

Chairman of Victoria Civil Defence Control Board, Ald. J. L. W. McLean praised Commodore Godfrey's work as co-ordinator last night.

"We at city hall appreciate the leadership he has given," he said.

"Commodore Godfrey has been responsible for all civil defence activities in Greater Victoria and in charge of civil defence training."

"He has had more than 6,000 persons in Greater Victoria, enrolled and trained through his office."

Ald. McLean said withdrawal of Esquimalt would mean a complete revamping of the civil defence organization in the city.

Repair Bill Paid On Impounded Ship

The $3,900 repair bill owing to Victoria Machinery Depot for work on the Iberian freighter Cacao was paid yesterday, VMD controller Drummond Taylor said here last night.

The ship was impounded at New Westminster Monday on a B.C. Admiralty Court warrant.

The 7,000-ton freighter had been repaired three weeks ago and was about to leave for Puerto Rico.

'Bigger, Better'

Empire Day Rescued By Nanaimo Citizens

NANAIMO — Empire Day celebrations will be held after all.

At a meeting at city hall last night, 35 people turned up and formed an Empire Day Celebrations Committee. Only last week, officials feared the celebrations would have to be cancelled for lack of interest.

"Empire Day will be bigger and better," said newly elected committee chairman John Knights about the May 17 to 20 celebrations.

Scouts Plan Beach Drive

Victoria's Boy Scouts will be good scouts again this year by conducting their annual cleanup drive to rid major beaches of broken glass.

Permission to carry out the project May 11 between 9 a.m. and noon has been asked of Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt councils.

Some Farmers Escape Quotas

Rural Vancouver Island—By Klaus Muentner

COWICHAN — Some of the few remaining farmers who do not have to worry about overproduction, marketing boards and quota systems on Vancouver Island and B.C. are the swine breeders.

"It is a very favorable branch of agriculture," says S. J. Hill, who lives on Telegraph Road and is the largest breeder here.

He is the president of the 60-member B.C. Swine Breeders' Association. With feed freight assistance from Ottawa, which gives farmers all across Canada an equal chance to benefit from the country's granary, the raising cost per pound of pork is uniform except for negligible variations. Mr. Hill says the per pound cost here now is 3½ cents and on the prairies half a cent less. Despite good market conditions, particularly for the 20 Vancouver Island pig farmers, this phase of agriculture lacks sufficient breeders.

According to a government survey only a fraction of the 200,000 Islanders' pork demand can be satisfied, and in British Columbia only three per cent can be met by the province's swine breeders.

ers sell directly to packing houses in Vancouver.

"We suffer hardly any shrinkage loss as our animals in most cases are shipped to their destination and butchered the same day," Mr. Hill says.

Packers allow about 1 per cent for shrinkage, but the loss for some prairie farmers is greater. However, the pork situation is well balanced across Canada.

He ships 50 pigs every month to Canada Packers in Vancouver, and in the coming summer he hopes to have his livestock potential increased to 500 animals.

"If we had more people who would raise pigs, breeders could take a keener interest in upgrading their stock by importing better animals and by more selective breeding," he says.

Another pig farmer in the Cowichan Station district is Peter Munkholm who came to Canada from Denmark and started to raise hogs three years ago.

With 200 pigs and a monthly shipment of 30 he is still dependent on outside work.

"You have to have good animals to make a living," he says, and this summer he hopes to reach this target.

VANCOUVER ISLAND 4-H leaders are urged to attend this year's annual workshop to be held in mid-March at Nanaimo as the most central spot on the island. The workshop will consist of a preview of the 1963 4-H program, and different discussion groups will air some of the problems with in the movement.

Government officials who will attend: S. B. Peterson, 1965.

B.C. 4-H supervisor; Miss Lorna Michael, 4-H home economist; J. S. Allen, supervising agriculturalist of Vancouver Island; John Zacharias, district agriculturalist of Courtenay, and Mr. Jameson.

Mr. Jameson said: "This meeting will be an important day for all 4-H senior, assistant and older junior leaders."

The association is supported by 583 farmer members in an area from Ladysmith to the Saanich Peninsula. The association is the oldest west of Ontario and was founded in 1895.

Garden Notes

Sow Late, Reap Early

By M. V. CHENNET, FRMS

I think the question which bothers the novice hobby gardener more than anything else is when to put his seeds in the ground. Garden books aren't much help here, for they all seem to assume every gardener is the proud owner of a posh greenhouse with thermostatically-controlled heat and automatic ventilation. If you don't have any glass, you are an inferior creature from outer darkness, beyond the pale and unfit to mingle with the elite.

Most of us are forced to get along without as much as a coldframe to raise our seedlings in, and yet we seem to make a go of it somehow. The trick is to become a Johnny, come-lately, sowing late rather than early and going by the texture and warmth of the soil rather than by any date on the calendar.

It never ceases to amaze me how much faster plants seem to grow when the sowing is delayed until the soil is really warm and has lost some of its excess spring moisture. Time and time again I have seen plants from a late sowing overtake and pass those from an earlier sowing which have been checked in their growth by cold spring winds, their leaves taking on a blue, pinched look.

We had a good example of this in last year's free seed offer of hybrid zinnias. We had a spot of cool wet weather in early May last year about the time the zinnia seeds were mailed out, and those up-and-coming readers who bunged the seeds in the ground right off the bat didn't have too much luck with their plants, while those layabouts who waited for summery weather were most enthusiastic over their flowers.

On the other hand, there are some seeds which can be planted in almost liquid mud and still make a showing of sorts: onion and parsnip seed, smooth-seeded peas, black-seeded sweet peas (but not the kinds with white, grey or fawn-colored seeds), snapdragons, cornflowers and the like. Even these will do a lot better if given more congenial germinating conditions.

The best accessory for the glassless gardener is a specially constructed seed bed for the raising of seedlings, which can be transplanted later to their proper growing sites. It doesn't have to be a big bed—you can raise a surprising number of baby plants in a patch no larger than your dinner table—but it must have really good drainage and some protection from the cold winds of spring. And, of course, it must lie in full sun.

The ideal site for such a bed is up against a tall fence or wall facing the south, with no overhanging tree branches to cast any shade. The wall will shield the seedlings from that bitter northeast wind we often get in April and early May and will radiate considerable stored heat through cool nights.

It is best to raise the bed six inches or so above the surrounding soil level, using old lumber, stones or even slabs of sod for the retaining walls. Rather than using the native backyard dirt, the bed should be filled with "made" soil—a mixture of good loam, sand and peat moss, much as you would use for pot plants indoors, and enriched with a little lime and superphosphate.

It is almost unbelievable what can be done with such a simple seed bed. With its excellent drainage, the soil will become workable a good month before the rest of the garden and many of the harder seeds can go in as early as March.

When the raising of the spring plants is completed, the little bed can be put to good use through the summer months for the growing of perennials from seed and for the propagation of cuttings.

CHARLES McDOWELL Looks Into Future

Machine Thinks Too Much

Victor Argapetian, senior scientist at the Servo-Mechanics Research and Development Centre, Santa Barbara, said a computer at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology already has written dozens of television westerns in a single afternoon. Until five years ago, he said, most mathematicians and engineers thought machines would never be able actually to think. But since then machines have passed every test of "thinking" they have been given. The ultimate thinking machine, which may be created very soon, will be self-programming, he said.

—The Los Angeles Times

Bored by Westerns Refuses to Carry On

Supervisor: Hello, Murkley. How's it doing today?

Keeper (consulting a clipboard): Only fair, chief. It knocked out a couple of Gunsmokes and got a pretty good start on a Bonanza before 10 o'clock this morning, but then it hogged down. It just seemed to lose interest.

Supervisor: What did you do then?

Keeper: I went in and tried to encourage it. I gave it some ideas.

Supervisor: How did it react?

Keeper: It wrote me a message saying it was bored with westerns, all westerns. It asked for a transfer to the Danny Thomas Show or Hazel or something like that.

Supervisor: That is ridiculous. We have good machines writing situation comedies already.

Keeper: I told it that. I suggested as politely as I could not wanting to hurt its feelings that it quit bellyaching and get back to work.

Supervisor: Did it get back to work?

Keeper: No. It damned its rights, quit whirling and didn't do anything. It said go away. It was on its coffee break.

Supervisor: What, if anything, did the confounded thing do between its coffee break and its lunch hour?

Keeper: For one thing, it doodled. It worked a bunch of silly problems in astrophysics and threw them away. After that it wrote a skit for the office party, making fun of us, I suspect, and then it wrote a long memo to me complaining about the fluorescent lighting in its office.

Supervisor: Has it hit a tap of useful work since lunch, Murkley? Tell me, has it?

Supervisor: Preposterous! What's it doing in there now?

Keeper: I suppose it's doing what it does every afternoon—it reads the Great Books to itself, all of them, every seven minutes, over and over again.

Supervisor: Frankly, Murkley, I've had about all I can take from this machine. I'm sick and tired of its superior attitude, its intellectual pretences, its eternal lollygagging and its mockery of us all. That machine is a malcontent. Let's face it—they all are.

Keeper: They think too much, chief. That's the trouble with them.

Stars London-Bound

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—London will be jumping soon with stars and productions. Judy Garland will be there in a week or so for the I Could Go on Singing premiere. Deborah Kerr is expected for The Chalk Garden, and isn't this Ross Hunter's first production about it? Joe Levine will be starting his Zulu epic with Stanley Baker and Terence Stamp in London. And Peter Sellers and Dirk Bogarde are doing their bomb picture... and Marion Dossa has been in London and my informant assures me she will marry R. J. Wagner when his divorce from Natalie Wood is final in April.

Laurence Harvey kept his sense of humor when he heard that his former leading lady, Capucine, said of him, "If he were offered Camille he'd put on a wig and play the girl." "It's a great pity," Larry conceded.

Dress designer Marjorie is prouder of her Peppermint West success than of all her pretty dresses. And it really is the place to go. In one week, these top stars were twirling and bowing: Ava Gardner with Hugh O'Brian, George Hamilton with Diane McBain, Gardner McKay with Sharon Thomas, Natalie Wood with Warren Beatty, Pamela Mason and Pat Fitzgerald, Zsa Zsa Gabor, Linda Christian and Bo Belinsky.

Peter O'Toole, complete with straight black hair—his own is curly—and bushy beard, is a hit in London's Baal. The first play written by Brecht in 1918 when he was 20. The run will be limited because of Peter's upcoming movie commitments.

RUDOLF FLESCH Reviews Surprise Book of Year

Anti-Sex Novel Latest Twist

Now I've seen everything. Someone has just written an anti-sex novel.

The author's name is Margery Sharp (a well-known supplier of ladies' lending-library novels) and the title of the book is Martha in Paris (Little, Brown).

This is a novel about a young girl totally devoid of sex appeal. She's fat, she eats like a hog, she never smiles and lacks any and all of the social graces. Her face looks like a dumpling, her hair is straight as an arrow, her figure is cylindrical and she pays no attention whatever to clothes.

The general effect—she's 18—as that of an inconspicuous matronly figure nobody would look twice at.

At school her nickname is "Mother Bunch." That just about tells the story.

This wholly unattractive female, through circumstances we won't go into here, is sent to Paris to study art. And what do you think happens? In a normal romantic novel, of course, anyone could guess the outcome without thinking twice. Martha meets a young man, falls instantly in love and, by the well-known magic of Paris in the springtime, is transformed.

Unattractive Female Prefers Food to Men

She goes on a diet and sheds 30 pounds, she learns to smile, she fixes her hair, makes up her face, buys some nice clothes and—presto!—the young man discovers that Martha is the loveliest girl he's ever seen.

The moon shines over the Luxembourg Gardens, they kiss and kiss again and everything ends in a ray glow.

But this is Martha in Paris, our anti-sex novel, and the actual plot is quite different. Martha does meet a young man but, unexpectedly, takes no interest in him whatsoever. Her appearance remains exactly what it was before—elephantine, unattractive, "Mother Bunch."

ways and Martha dismisses the episode from her mind.

There's more to the plot, of course, but essentially that's about all you get. The moral of the tale seems to be that sex is just an unnecessary bother and shouldn't be allowed to interfere with more important matters, such as learning how to paint. Anyway, the whole sexual thing is greatly overrated.

So there you have it—the surprise novel of the year. What the lending-library ladies will say to all this remains to be seen.

Retired Doctor's Tip:

Island Land of Milk, Honey

By MARGARET TREBETT

PORT ALBERNI — A doctor who retired after 34 years of medical practice around Boston and entered the real estate business in Nanaimo says Vancouver Island is the real land of milk and honey and has figures to prove it can be even better.

Dr. T. C. Cosgrove speaking on industrial development in a Chamber of Commerce luncheon here, urged a survey to gather data for prospective investors.

But, he said, "don't look for too much. If you go, one industrialist interested in five years, you are doing well." He suggested three or four small industries are as good as one big one, then gave the figures.

If a plant investing $1,500,000 enters a locality, it will employ 100 workers, mean jobs for 117 more in service fields, establish 131 households, provide 66 school children, bring three new retail outlets and add $30,000 to taxes.

Dr. Cosgrove said export manufacturing industries are the ones to be encouraged most and opposed tax exemptions for new firms.

Each resident of an area should know what land, utilities and resources his area has to offer. Recreational resources also should be stressed.

Dr. Cosgrove also said the Alberni Valley needs more effort in its campaign to attract tourists.

Merry Widow Today

The Duncan Musical Club production of Franz Lehar's gay and sparkling The Merry Widow opens a run of three nights at Cowichan High School auditorium at 8:15 to-night.

Sonia, the widow with charm and 20,000,000 francs, is played by Elaine Kirby. Prince Danilo, played by Alan Vance, is her most ardent admirer.

Also adorning the scene are Joo Joo (Diane Charworth-Musters), Lolo (Tosca Oyen), Malitta (Gail Cameron) and Natalie (Louise Sharpe).

Rick Jenks is Camille, and comedy artist Lewis Langlois plays Popoff.

There will be a 20-piece orchestra with musical director Dr. Heinz Killan. Stage activity comes under Ruth Murrell.

Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Pearkes are expected to attend.

Nuclear Arms

Canada 'Never Pledged'

WINNIPEG (CP) — External Affairs Minister Howard Green said Wednesday Canada had never committed itself to accepting nuclear arms for its forces in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Party President

High Tory Favors Warheads

MONTREAL (CP) — Egan Chambers, national president of the Progressive Conservative Association said Wednesday night Canada's Bomarc nuclear missiles and Voodoo intercept aircraft should be armed with nuclear warheads.

He made the statement in a speech accepting the Conservative party nomination to contest Montreal St. Lawrence-St. George riding in the April 8 federal election.

MOST EFFICIENT

"It is my belief," he said, "that as long as the Canadian chiefs of staff tell the government that Russia retains a sufficient force of long-range bombers to pose a real threat to North America, our interceptors—the Bomarc and Voodoo aircraft—should be armed in the most efficient manner possible, which means with nuclear weapons."

CAN'T START WAR

Mr. Chambers said neither the Bomarc nor the Voodoo "has the capability of starting a war."

Bomarc, for example, could not be launched until an attacking force had flown over 1,000 miles of northern Canada.

"I want to reiterate that I do support the policies of the Conservative party although there are some of them that I would change or expand upon."

He told a press conference that Liberal claims about such a commitment were false. Mr. Green, here to address a Progressive Conservative nominating convention, said "we happen to be the government."

and I say there wasn't a commitment agreement signed. Mr. Green said the Liberals "put themselves in a mess" on the nuclear question when they suddenly made up their minds that Canada has a lot of commitments.

At home, he said, Prime Minister Diefenbaker made it clear in June 1961 that Voodoo aircraft added to the RCAF would have a conventional role.

NONE BROKEN

Canada has no commitments to anybody to accept nuclear weapons outright and "we have broken no commitments."

Mr. Green said there is a lot of Liberal talk about Canada's prestige declining abroad by not accepting nuclear weapons for NATO and "this is a lot of eyewash."

ONE OF FEW

Canada is one of only a few countries which have lived up to their NATO commitments, he said.

There is a strong feeling in Quebec against possession of nuclear weapons and the Liberals "will lose a lot of seats" there in the April 8 federal election because of their pro-nuclear stand.

BEST FRIEND

Much of Canada's work in a world disarmament council would be wasted if the country took nuclear weapons, he said.

Mr. Green admitted Canada has "one or two serious problems" with the United States but at the same time Canada is the best friend the U.S. has.

He said a loss of support for the Progressive Conservative party from some eastern newspapers could be "a blessing." People came to Prime Minister Diefenbaker's side when he was "so vicious and unfairly attacked."

PREMIER BENNETT
... why not before?

It's Up To B.C. —Fulton

VERNON (CP) — Works Minister Fulton says the federal government, while "vitaly interested," is going to leave it up to B.C.'s Social Credit government to investigate charges levelled in the legislature in connection with a Trans-Canada Highway project.

In an interview, Mr. Fulton said Wednesday:

"Federal money was involved in this work and naturally the federal government is vitally interested in any charges such as these. The federal government does not plan to initiate any investigation because I am sure provincial authorities will see to it a full and conclusive investigation is made."

Mr. Fulton has been named B.C. leader of the Progressive Conservative party and will be leaving the federal cabinet.

He said he plans to return to his Ottawa office Thursday and will check the contracts and payments connected with the charges.

Completed Hearings Promised

A legislative committee will be kept sitting as long as necessary to finish its hearings into charges of large-scale misuse of funds in the B.C. highways department—even after prorogation.

That, Premier Bennett told the legislature Wednesday, is the government's position.

It will stay that way, he said, despite opposition demands that sworn statements and documents tabled in the legislature Tuesday should be turned over immediately to the RCMP for investigation.

His reply came after renewed demands by Alan Macfarlane (Lib.-Oak Bay) for an immediate police probe of the allegations made by Gordon Dowling (NDP—Burnaby).

The charges "alleged misconduct of the most serious kind," Mr. Macfarlane said, and completed RCMP reports should go to Attorney-General Bonner and to the minister of justice in Ottawa, because both provincial and federal funds were involved.

The reports might show that the allegations were well founded and "might involve the resignation of the minister of highways" or that they were unfounded and all persons named would be cleared of any responsibility, he said.

It was time for immediate action, Mr. Macfarlane said, and he did not want to see the charges handled by the standing committee on public accounts.

They could start an investigation and the House could end its session and that would be the end of it, he suggested.

JAMES RHODES
... 'spider web'

EINAR GUNDERSON
... under fire again

New Affidavits Read in 'House

By DON MATHESON

More documents, more charges of alleged Social Credit misuse of public office cracked in the legislature Wednesday as the New Democratic Party continued a session-long attack.

James Rhodes (NDP—Delta) stepped up to the firing line to wind up the budget debate for the opposition.

Before he finished he had:

● Tabled two sworn affidavits alleging conflict of private with public interest by PGE railway vice-president Einar Gunderson;

● Described a series of construction companies as "a spider web" whose main qualifications appeared to him that they were either connected with defeated Social Credit candidates or had personal connections with Highways Minister P. A. Gaglardi, and,

● Said the opposition will move before the session is over to have the government appoint a royal commission to inquire into how all political parties in B.C. obtain campaign funds.

Mr. Rhodes read in full two long sworn statements from Douglas Small of Eagle Harbor, one-time employee of W. L. Laird Distributors Ltd., and public accountant Ludger Robineau of Williams Lake, who once checked the Laird company's accounts with the PGE.

CONCLUSIONS

After tabling them, he said the basic conclusions to be drawn from the affidavits were:

● "Gunderson's private firm is involved in the affairs of a company doing business with the PGE."

● "Gunderson as vice-president of the PGE has extended special favors to W. L. Laird Distributors Ltd."

● "The company was depriving the railway of proper revenues."

● "The conflict of interest by Gunderson was harmful to a crown company and is untenable."

Mr. Gunderson is a partner in the accounting firm of Gunderson, Stokes, Walton and Co.

"MUST GO"

A week earlier, the legislature heard the call, "Mr. Gunderson must go," from Alex Macdonald (NDP—Vancouver East) because he was a director of crown agencies and also said to be a collector of Social Credit campaign funds.

Tuesday, documents claiming large-scale misuse of B.C. highways department funds, including sums in the $100,000 range, were filed in the House.

COMPLAINTS

Early in his speech, Mr. Rhodes referred to the charges and then said Mr. Gaglardi had "complicated matters" about order-paper questions about the same paid to a certain list of companies for government work.

He listed Atlas Construction Co., Casco Tire Co., Western Sand and Gravel Ltd., all of Kamloops, and seven other companies. The order-paper answers showed they received about $2,200,000 during 1962.

"SPIDER WEB"

"The companies mentioned in the questions," Mr. Rhodes said, "appear to be part of a large spider—a spider web of companies whose main qualifications appear to be either defeated Social Credit candidates or their personal connections with the minister."

One group of interlocking companies had as a director a disgraced lawyer who had been sentenced to two years in prison for fraud, he said.

"PUBLIC PAID"

With "no construction experience, no financial backing" the company had fallen down on a major project and "the public paid through the nose for this blatant patronage which went to these inefficient political heels."

All the companies "over the years, have received literally

Anti-Climax

Ultimatum On Gas Made Good

Social Credit maverick Cyril Shefford's ultimatum to the government on gasoline prices was made good last night when, before its deadline—but it came as an anti-climax.

At the close of last night's sitting he filed a notice of motion for next Friday calling on the government to "give consideration to the appointment of a royal commission to study all phases of petroleum marketing practices in the province and to make recommendations thereon."

PASSING LIKELY

It is the kind of resolution which can be supported without any embarrassing split in Social Credit ranks and undoubtedly would be passed.

Key words on the resolution are "give consideration."

Had it called on the government to appoint a royal commission a major split could have taken place.

SUPPORT

More than half a dozen Social Credit members had already indicated support of Shefford's plan and so had NDP and Liberal members.

Speaking during the throne speech debate earlier in the session Mr. Shefford gave all companies and the government until today to take action.

MAY NOT RISE

But last night there was even some question of whether the resolution could come up Friday.

If it has to take its turn among some 22 other resolutions now before the House it may not come up before the end of the session.

Five Killed In Crash

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP) — A KC135 tanker crashed at Eielson air force base near here Wednesday night and U.S. Air Force officials said at least five persons were killed.

Drought Threat Panics Swedes

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Panicky crowds of Swedes—a traditionally thirsty lot—stormed the state liquor stores Wednesday.

The foremen at the state liquor monopoly went on strike over vacation time.

Rumors circulated that the more popular types of drink—vodka, whisky, brandy and domestic beer—will be exhausted in a few days.

French Warships Head for Brazil

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI)—Brazilian Navy Minister Pedro Paulo Suzano said last night four French warships are en route to Brazilian waters and "we will repel these ships."

The ship movements were the latest development in the "lobster war" between Brazil and France.

Suzano said the Brazilian navy intercepted French radio messages which reported that the 60-plane carrier Clemenceau, the cruiser De Grasse and two destroyers, Tatu and Casard, are "halfway between France and Brazil."

France and Brazil have been heading for a naval showdown due to Brazilian harassment of French lobster boats.

Zeballos Shutdown

Island Miners Jobless, Unpaid

VANCOUVER (CP) — Harvey Murphy, western district president of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (Ind.) said Wednesday night an iron mine at Zeballos closed down

Wednesday without giving the 100 employees notice or severance pay.

Mr. Murphy said he has instructed union lawyers to file immediate claims on the properties of International Iron Mines Limited, owner of the Zeballos mine, "to ensure that wages and other debts owed the men will be paid."

"This comes as a terrible shock," he said.

"It is the first time anything like this has happened here.

"The graveyard shift came off duty today without any indication they would have no jobs when they came back tonight."

He said the mine shut down during the afternoon. By 10 p.m. about 60 of the miners had arrived here from Zeballos, a small community on the west coast of Vancouver Island.

Mr. Murphy said the men were fired without pay, a statement denied here Wednesday night by an officer of the company.

Animal Vote Baffles Nikita

MOSCOW (Reuters)—Premier Khrushchev Wednesday described the U.S. political system as a choice between "a donkey and an elephant."

"I do not know which of these two animals I would prefer myself," he told a cheering audience of 6,000 Soviet voters at the Kremlin in a "campaign meeting" before Sunday's Soviet elections.

The donkey is the symbol of the Democratic party in the U.S. and the elephant that of the Republicans.

Khrushchev is a candidate for re-election to the Supreme Soviet parliament from the Kalinin electoral district of Moscow.

During his two visits to the United States, Khrushchev told the voters, he took the opportunity to watch television during a U.S. election campaign.

He told about American voters being driven "crazy" by the 24-hour-a-day noise of speeches trying to persuade them to vote "for a donkey or an elephant."

Khrushchev said politicians in bourgeois countries were mostly "capitalists, gouging landlords or their stooges."

It was quite different in the Soviet Union. A Soviet representative needed no money and no influential connections.
